Acknowledgments

We thank the following for sharing their research and expertise: Marguerite Garnet, archivist at the Charlotte County Archives, was extremely helpful. The previous work of George Haney was exceptionally useful. He had conducted interviews of many elderly cousins no longer alive, amassed an extraordinary number of family group sheets, and traced out all the descendants of Mary Ann Sprague. Anne Hill of greater Saint John, her mother Frances Flemington of Fredericton, and Jane Brightman of New York, had already traced out all the descendants of Edward Irvin and shared their information freely. Sharon Howland, genealogist and summer resident of Calais, had compiled several indexes to Washington County records and made them available while still in draft form. John Irving of Calais provided family group sheets for the James Henry Irving line originally prepared by Hazel Townsend of Meriden, Connecticut.

The following cousins provided information beyond their immediate nuclear families by interviewing extended family members or sharing copies of documents, for which we are deeply appreciative: Edna Alves of Hopedale, Massachusetts, Roberta Cekala of Westerly, Rhode Island, Irma Cookson of Calais, Maine, Anita Grearson of St. George, New Brunswick, Donald Hacker of Willowdale, Ontario, Kenneth Hacker of Ottawa, Ontario, George Haney of Canoose, New Brunswick, Dot Hanson of Moore's Mills, New Brunswick, Vernard and Jennette Irvine, late of Framingham, Massachusetts, Kenneth Irvine, late of Milltown, New Brunswick, Ruth Johnson of St. Stephen, New Brunswick, Penny Maestretti of Savannah, Georgia, Shirley Massey of Bradford, Massachusetts, Karen Thomas of Calais, Maine, Niles Tracy of Calais, Maine, and Phyllis Williamson of Middle Sackville, Nova Scotia.

We especially thank our wives, Donna and Sandra Adams, for their patience and forbearance; and our editor, Lewis Rohrbach, for his editorial guidance.

No project of this scope can be error-free. Where possible, we have attempted to reduce errors by finding multiple documentary sources for the vital events of deceased individuals. Information from the genealogical research of others was verified in as many instances as possible. Information derived from interviews was checked by mailing genealogical printouts to the informants, many of whom made detailed corrections. For any errors that remain, responsibility rests with the compilers.

Preface

This project was made possible by the fortunate circumstance of one of the compilers (WJA) having taken up residence at Calais, Maine. This put him within an easy drive of the Charlotte County Archives at St. Andrews, New Brunswick; the libraries at St. Stephen, New Brunswick, and Calais, Maine; the cemeteries of Charlotte County, New Brunswick, and Washington County, Maine; and the Provincial Archives at Fredericton, New Brunswick.

Irvin, Irvine or Irving?

Uniformity in spelling was not a concern in 19th century New Brunswick. Depending on the habit or mood of the clerk recording the information the name might be rendered as Irvin, Irvine or Irving, or even Irwine. Educated clerks tended to use Irvine or Irving. The immigrants bearing this surname, who seem to have been less lettered than the clerks, often signed their names in the form that most closely transcribes the pronunciation, that is, Irvin. In the early 20th century usage became regular and now corresponds for the most part to the family branches begun by the children of Thomas and Margaret. The descendants of Edward and Henry continue to prefer Irvin. Most of the descendants of John use Irvine. Within the John Irvin branch, the transition to Irvine is illustrated by the marriage certificate of Frederick Irvine and Emma Teed (see figure 1). The clerk wrote "Irvine." Frederick signed "Irvin." His sister Carrie, a witness, signed "Irvine." Frederick thereafter used "Irvine." Where possible, we used the spellings favored by the individual descendants as reflected by signatures on documents or inscriptions on gravestones.

Local Geography

The St. Croix River and Passamaquoddy Bay form the boundary between Canada and the United States, between the Province of New Brunswick and the State of Maine, and between Charlotte County, N.B., and Washington County, Maine (see figure 4). The cities of St. Stephen, New Brunswick, and Calais, Maine, sit on opposite sides of the river and have long been connected by at least one bridge. The village of Milltown, New Brunswick, now a part of St. Stephen but an incorporated town from 1873 to 1973, is on the opposite shore from Milltown, a village in Calais. The two Milltowns are connected by a bridge. The native shorthand while speaking is "Milltown N-B" and "Milltown Maine." Down river on the Canadian bank where the river meets Passamaquoddy Bay is St. Andrews, the seat of Charlotte County. Opposite St. Andrews and not connected by a bridge is the Maine town of Robbinston. Upstream from St. Stephen the bridge between Baring, Maine, and Upper Falls, New Brunswick, washed out in the early 1900s and was not replaced. Further upstream, St. James Parish lies opposite the Maine town of Baileyville, also not connected by any bridge. In the title of this book, "St. Stephen" refers to the greater St. Stephen and Calais region encompassing western Charlotte County and the Maine towns along the St. Croix River. See figure 5.

Like the counties of the New England states, the counties of New Brunswick province have little governmental function beyond those of the courts and registries of deeds and probate. Counties in New Brunswick are further subdivided into parishes and towns. Parishes are rural, and are similar to the townships in the non-New England states in that they offer few if any governmental services and are little more than arbitrary divisions on the map. New Brunswick towns and cities provide local governmental services and are similar to incorporated New England cities. A New Brunswick parish might have several villages, each with a distinctive name. Citizens almost always identify with the village, not the parish. Because the parishes have always been the enumeration districts for the decennial census, we have identified all villages outside organized towns by their parishes. In this book we have specified locale to the most detailed level permitted by the documentary sources. An entry might state that an individual was a farmer in St. David Parish, based on the census, and that he died at the village of Tower Hill, based on an obituary. Knowing that Tower Hill is in St. David Parish prevents one from concluding that the individual lived in two different places. Maps are included to assist the reader with the interpretation of place names (see figures 5 and 6).

Although the denizens of New Brunswick and the New England states typically claim residence not in a county but in a town, the counties are included as part of the place names in this book because they help readers unfamiliar with the geography to appreciate the proximity of what might otherwise seem to be distant towns. Because Newfoundland and the western provinces of Canada are not divided into counties, no counties are given for towns in Newfoundland, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba. Similarly, certain remote parts of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario have no counties. Moreover, the counties of Quebec have lost most governmental functions and now serve largely as electoral districts. For the province of Quebec, the governmental unit intermediate in size and between the province and the city is the administrative region. For Quebec we have listed both subdivisions of the province because some of our listings in Quebec are contemporary and some are not. The neighboring province of Ontario has also tinkered with its counties. In the metropolitan areas of Ontario, several counties have merged, some to later re-divide; and some major cities have annexed adjacent towns, adopted a metropolitan government, and abolished the original counties. For locales in Ontario we have listed the names of counties as given by the web site Ontario Locator (www.geneofun.on.ca /ontariolocator).

Historical Context

Ulster: Ireland's northern province, Ulster, lies only a few miles across the Irish Sea from Scotland (see figures 2 and 3). Although the English had claimed Ireland since Norman times, by the late 1500s the English exercised effective control of only a few areas on the eastern side of Ireland, in an area known as the Pale extending out from Dublin, and in a few local areas in the eastern Ulster counties of Down and Antrim. Because the old (Norman) English lords in Ireland had become hibernicized and for the most part had remained Roman Catholic during Henry VIII's reformation of the English Church, what English control did exist was nominal. During the late 1500s Queen Elizabeth I took steps to re-assert English authority through a military campaign in Ireland led by Mountjoy. After Mountjoy's campaign some Protestant Scots began to settle in Down and Antrim. After the Scottish and English crowns were combined when James VI of Scotland became James I of England, it became possible for the English to colonize Ireland using Scottish settlers. At that time, the English viewed Ireland as a wild land with alien customs, and Ulster was considered particularly troublesome. James I embraced the concept of plantation. Plantation differed from the time-honored method of military conquest because its central feature was the installation of the entire civil apparatus of government, and artisans and farmers, rather than the installation of warlords. James simultaneously undertook the plantation of Ulster in Ireland and Virginia in America. At the time, the two plantation projects were viewed as comparable ventures. Because Counties Antrim and Down were already under effective British control, the Ulster plantation project involved only the other seven Ulster counties but not Antrim and Down. Hundreds of settlers from southwestern Scotland and northern England were brought to the Ulster plantation between 1610 and 1620 to farm and to work as artisans. More followed after the official plantation years, and at the same time, Scottish settlers continued to emigrate to Down and Antrim.[1]

Before the plantation, the indigenous Irish farmed and herded without fences. In the summer they took their grazing animals into the hills to cooler pastures. The British settlers fenced the land, stopped the practice of moving herds to the hills, and created and built up all the major towns of Ulster. Londonderry (Derry) was the project of several London trade guilds. Belfast was an entirely British creation.[2]

Ulster Scots (the Scots-Irish) began emigrating to America in the 1700s, and constituted a major immigration group in America. Although some settled in New England, the most concentrated settlement occurred in Pennsylvania, from whence they moved down the Appalachians into the southern colonies.

British North America: The formation of the United States of America from thirteen former British colonies was recognized by Great Britain in 1783 when both parties signed the Treaty of Paris. The British colonies of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Canada remained loyal British colonies. At that time Nova Scotia included what was later to become New Brunswick, and "Canada" referred only to the regions now known as the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. The impetus for the establishment of New Brunswick as a separate colony in 1784 in the aftermath of the U.S. revolution came from the influx of loyalist refugees from the United States and idle British regiments. Charlotte County was established in 1786.[3] From 1783 to 1867, what we now know as Canada was called British North America, and consisted of separate colonies with governmental ties to Britain but not to each other.

To bolster its border with the United States, the Crown encouraged settlement of British North America. Many Scots-Irish were motivated to emigrate by an Irish economy that had declined following the end of the Napoleonic Wars in 1815. Emigration of this group to British North America and to the United States was heavy from 1815 to 1855. Although Protestant Irish comprised 25% of the population of Ireland, they were 50% of the Irish emigrants to British North America. Their ports of entry were predominantly Saint John, New Brunswick, and Quebec City in Lower Canada. In New Brunswick, the Protestant Irish tended to settle the southern shore, fanning out from Saint John. Catholic Irish predominated on the eastern shore, especially in the Miramachi valley.[1]

These Irish emigrants to New Brunswick made their passage in sail-rigged freight vessels whose primary purpose was the transport of lumber from New Brunswick to Ireland and Britain. Passage from Ireland to New Brunswick took six weeks or more, was rough, and was not undertaken in winter. The holds were fitted with temporary wooden frames to create sleeping quarters. The frames were removed in Saint John to make room for the lumber. With the brief exception of a subsidized plantation in Nova Scotia, Irish emigrants to British North America paid their own fare. The price of passage declined during the period of Protestant Irish emigration as the lumber shippers competed for return ballast. Scholars believe that those who emigrated early in the post-Napoleonic period, like Thomas Irvin, were better off than those who emigrated later, because the price of passage was rather high at first.[2]

The district of Maine, part of Massachusetts since colonial times, became a state in 1820. Immediately after the arrival of the immigrants to New Brunswick, there began a general migratory drift across the international border to Washington County, Maine.

After the American civil war, demand for timber and ships dried up and the economy of New Brunswick declined. Thousands of the children and grandchildren of the pioneer immigrants left for the New England states where manufacturing jobs were to be had, and for the western United States where the lumber trade was active. Curiously, families from the maritime provinces played almost no role in the 19th century settlement of the western territories of British North America.[3]

When the Dominion of Canada was formed by the British North America Act in 1867, the three founding colonies of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick became the provinces of Ontario (formerly upper Canada), Quebec (formerly lower Canada), Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. Newfoundland remained a British colony until much later. From 1870 onward, the previously unorganized western territories of British North America were organized into colonies and then merged into the Canadian dominion as provinces. Prior to 1867, Britain subsidized railway shipping between the maritime colonies and what are now the central Canadian provinces of Quebec and Ontario. The subsidy was dropped when Britain confederated its colonies into the Dominion of Canada, leading to a hastening of the economic decline mentioned above.

Scots-Irish descendants in America: Canada and the inland areas of the American South are heavily populated with descendants of the Scots who settled Ireland in the 1600s. They assimilated so easily that many living descendants have no Irish or Scottish identity. Some are aware of their Scots origins, but few (including most of the participants in the Scottish games so popular in the American South) know that those origins included a few hundred years in Ireland. We speculate that the anti-Catholic sentiment that prevailed among Protestants in the 19th century led some Scots-Irish descendants in the New World to quietly drop their Irish identity when Catholic Irish immigration swelled in the late 19th century.

Editorial Conventions: In the genealogy narrative we have adopted the editorial convention that immigration and emigration refer only to movement across the Atlantic Ocean. Movement across the border between Canada and the United States is treated the same as movement across a town boundary within the same county, that is, as removal. In adopting this approach, we unwittingly mimicked the intensely local viewpoint of those who live along the St. Croix River, where the international border and its customs checkpoints are viewed as nuisances separating brother from sister, and businessman from customer.[1] Where Milltown appears without a state or province, it is understood to mean Milltown, New Brunswick, not Milltown, Maine. We follow the Canadian convention for spelling the cities named after the apostle John: Saint John, New Brunswick, and St. John,

[1] Border crossings are more tightly controlled now than was the case 25 years ago. One of the authors, WJA, ironically notes that the extra customs officers brought in from Saint John and Fredericton on busy days often fail to recognize any authority to cross in the windshield display of a Calais dump sticker. The Canadian and American postal systems serve to divide: A letter for Calais posted in St. Stephen is routed through Ottawa and then Philadelphia. But the sense of one community is enhanced by the telephone system. Telephone service between the area codes of Calais and St. Stephen is free of charge. For an example of this sense of community, see the birth citation for Adam Jerod Pollock. Clerks in the New England towns where most people are born and die, that is the towns with hospitals, customarily provide duplicate copies of vital records to the clerks in the nearby towns where the persons reside. In the case of Adam, the city clerk in Canada, where he was born, provided a duplicate copy of his birth record to the city clerk in the United States, where his parents resided. Not only was this done without involving the respective consulates of the two countries, or the secretaries of state for Maine and New Brunswick, it would not be surprising if the St. Stephen clerk had mailed the duplicate record while on a personal errand in Calais or delivered it personally.

Newfoundland, but St. John County, New Brunswick. For estimated dates, about is used when the date is estimated by subtracting an unreliable age from a known date. This is exemplified by birth years determined from ages given to census takers. Say, in say, and between are used when an unknown date is determined to lie between the dates of two known events.

Mills: Canadian Cottons operated a textile mill at Milltown, New Brunswick, in the latter part of the 19th and the first part of the 20th centuries (see figure 6, site 4). Many Irvin men and women worked there, and a few took their experience to textile mills in New England and Ontario when they left New Brunswick. The other large mill in the area is upriver at Woodland in Baileyville, Maine, where a large paper mill has operated for many years under the sequential ownership of St. Croix, Georgia Pacific, and most lately, Domtar. The Domtar mill is the major employer in Washington County, Maine. The index can be used to locate Irvins who have worked at these mills.

Scope of the Project

In this course of our research, we found records of many Irvins, Irvines, Irvings and Irwins, and had to construct their lineages in order to properly place all the Irvins with similar given names in the correct families. This information is organized in the form of five short genealogies, and a list of unconnected findings from various sources titled "Unconnected and Transient Irvins." These reports are limited to deceased persons, are less well documented than the genealogy of Thomas Irvin, and the conclusions have reached a correspondingly lesser degree of certainty. Some, perhaps most, of these other Irvins have no connection to our Thomas Irvin, and are included for the benefit of other researchers. However we believe that it is a reasonable possibility, based on geographic proximity alone, that the five Irvins who are the subject of the short genealogies (Hugh, John, and William of St. David Parish; David of Calais; and most tantalizing, his neighbor James Irvine of Little Ridge) may be brothers or cousins of Thomas Irvin. However we were never able to document any connection among these Irvins. We commissioned the Ulster Historical Foundation of Belfast, Northern Ireland, to try to find a link in Ireland for these men, but that search yielded no useful information.

This project began as a search for the ancestors of our grandfather Vernard Johnson Irvine and evolved into a descendant genealogy of his great-grandfather, Thomas Irvin. Consequently we have information on the ancestry of his mother Clara Johnson and his grandmother Catherine Gow. The ancestries of these women are reported as ancestral genealogies at the back of the book.

How to Use This Genealogy

This book has one main and seven short genealogies. Six, including the main one, are descendant genealogies that start with an ancestor and trace the descendants forward, starting with the earliest and ending with contemporaneous cousins. Two are ancestral genealogies that start with wives of two Irvins, and trace their ancestors back in time, and so end with the most ancient persons. Both types of genealogies are organized by generation, so that all persons of the same generation are described in one section.

The format for the descendant genealogies is described here in more detail. It begins with the progenitor (person in the oldest generation), next lists the children of the progenitor, then the grandchildren, and ends with the latest generation. All cousins in a generation are listed before the text proceeds to the next generation. A child is listed beneath the description of his or her parents, in indented paragraphs. Descendants with no children are fully described beneath their parents. A person who appears as both child and parent is fully described where he or she appears as a parent. These persons, who are said to carry forward, have a unique identifying Arabic numeral appearing in a column to the left of the text. Descendants who do not carry forward do not have Arabic numerals. To trace a line of descent back and forth across the generations, simply use the identifying Arabic numbers, knowing that each Arabic numeral appears twice, once for the parent listing and once for the child listing. The number appearing as a superscript after the descendant's first or middle name is the generation number. In the parent block of information, immediately after the name of the descendant, is a string of italicized names in parentheses, each with a generation number in superscript. This navigational aid lists the sequence of ancestors back to the progenitor. Footnote numbers, which also appear in superscript, are bracketed to distinguish them from generation numbers.

The format lists vital and descriptive information in the following order:

Birth, death, and burial of the descendant
Name of spouse; place and date of marriage; birth, parentage, death, and burial of spouse
Biographical data for spouse
Biographical data for descendant

This format is designed to let genealogists find the birth, marriage, and death events for the descendant at the top of the entry. Most of the footnotes in this book are citations of documentary sources. Other footnotes are commentaries on conflicting documentary sources, and yet others set forth factual information that is outside the scope or format of the main text. At the end of the book is an index of persons, places, and wars. The index includes both maiden and married names for women, and names of unrelated persons mentioned in the text and footnotes. Also indexed are towns, villages, wars, and churches and cemeteries in the St. Stephen area, the cotton mill at Milltown, and the paper mill at Baileyville. Persons unfamiliar with standard genealogical formats might benefit from the directions given in the footnote to this sentence.[1]

[1] If you would like to try an example, do the following. These directions may run across the bottom of two pages.

(1) Use the index to find Wayne Nicol. The names in the index are arranged by last name (surname), so look under "N," not "W," and you will see the entry for Nicol, Wayne Stanton (1966–). The numbers in parentheses are the years of birth and death. When the year is unknown, the space is blank (Wayne's year of death is unknown because he is alive). You will see two page numbers. The first page number is where Wayne appears as a child in his parents' family. The second number is where he appears as a parent with a wife and children. Flip to that second page number and find his entry.

(2) You should now be looking at an entry that describes the vital events (vital events are birth, marriage, divorce, and death) and biographical information for Wayne Nicol and his wife, Jeanne. In this book, women are listed by their maiden names or if they married into the Irvin family, the name that they carried at the time they married the Irvin descendant. So, Jeanne is listed as Jeanne Ravenelle, not Jeanne Nicol (The index does list married names as a finding tool that directs the user to the maiden names). After Wayne's name, in italics and between parentheses, are the sequential names of Wayne's mother, grandfather, great grandfather, great great grandfather, and finally, Thomas Irvin, the common ancestor for all the descendants in the book.

(3) The number "132" to the left of Wayne's name is his identifying number in the genealogy. Above, notice his nephew Kevin, number 220, and below, his children, only one of whom has a number. The number 221 beside Wendy's name means that she herself has a child. Notice that the children's numbers are indented to the right and the parent number is not. With the mind's eye, you can see that the numbers form two columns, the left column for the parents and the right column for the children.

(4) Keeping in mind that these identifying numbers are not page numbers, and keeping your eye on the column of children's numbers, flip through the pages, going toward the front of the book, until you find the number 132 again. Now you see where Wayne appears as a child, with his brother and sister, beneath the description of his parents, Elizabeth Irvine and Arthur Nicol. Elizabeth Irvine has her own identifying number of 64. Notice that although most of the footnotes are academic citations of the sources of information, one of the footnotes for Elizabeth is a discursive footnote that relates how Elizabeth Irvine and Arthur Nicol met. This note memorializes a bit of family lore that is important to Elizabeth's children, but that is outside the scope of the regular biographical format. There are many such notes throughout the book.

(5) Using the same process, try finding the father of Elizabeth Irvine.

(6) Using the reverse process, try finding Wayne's grandson. Notice that all persons of the same generation are in the same part of the book.

References to Sources

To keep the footnotes from occupying 90% of every page, we adopted the following convention. If a source documented multiple events, we often chose to footnote such a source to the first (boldface) rendition of a person's name, immediately after the parenthetical, italicized line of descent. In such cases, a footnote to an event is an additional source, not the sole source for that event. Likewise, when a statement or event is not specifically footnoted, it is documented by the footnotes to the person's name. If a child's name is not footnoted, the sources are the same as for the parent's name.

Errata

Because of a computer software glitch, the page numbers given in the index are off by one page for some entries between pages 183 and 260.

The abbreviation CCRD, found in the footnotes on pages 7, 8, and 28, should be CCDeed (Charlotte County Registry of Deeds).

Some footnotes on pages 289–300 incorrectly refer to the 1851 Canadian census and the 1861 Canadian census. These censuses should be labeled British, not Canadian.

Chapter 1. Descendants of Thomas Irvin and Margaret Jane Bell of Little Ridge, St. James Parish, New Brunswick

First Generation

1. THOMAS[1] IRVIN was born in Ireland about 1798.[1] He died in say 1842 after the conception of his son Alexander and before his wife's 1843 purchase of a house lot in her own name.[2]

He married MARGARET JANE BELL.[3] Margaret, daughter of John Bell and Jane Black,[4] was born in Ireland and baptized at Down Patrick, County Down, in the Down Church of Ireland on 17 August 1796.[5] She died at Little Ridge, St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on

The compilers commissioned the Ulster Historical Foundation to search the records for Edward Lacelles and then for Thomas Irvin. Based on the origin of Margaret Jane Bell at Downpatrick and the likely origin of Edward Lacelles in Killough, the search for Thomas Irvin was concentrated in the records of the Barony of Lecale. The search failed to find any connection with Thomas Irvin. He may have been from another barony, county or province.

Margaret appears as a widow in the 1851 census.

[3] Alexander Irvin, obits, Courier (18 Aug 1927, 1 Sep 1927) (hereafter cited as Alexander Irvin, obits, Courier).

[4] In her son Edward's baptism record, her name is given as Margaret Jane Irvin. She listed her church affiliation as Church of England in the 1881 census.

[5] Baptismal record of Jane Bell, Down Patrick Parish Church, British film 0823636, Family History Library, Salt Lake City (hereafter cited as Jane Bell, baptism); Margaret Irvine, obit, Courier (26 Apr 1883) (hereafter cited as Margaret Irvine, obit); and death of Margaret Irvin, Trinity Church Records of St Stephen/St James, microfilm (hereafter cited as Margaret Irvin, Trinity record). Her brother James had been baptized 18 Sep 1792 and her sister Hannah 10 Nov 1794 at the same church.

6 April 1883 and was buried at St. Stephen, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 9 April in the Rural Cemetery.[1]

About 1820 she emigrated from Ireland to New Brunswick.[2] After Thomas died Margaret paid 40 pounds in May 1843 for a 3/8 acre house lot, numbered 22, on the road from St. Stephen to Old Ridge. She sold the northern half of the lot to the Cutter brothers in 1847 for 30 pounds. Somehow she regained title to the entire lot and sold it to her son Henry in 1854.[3] Living with her on the farm in 1851 were her children Edward (24), Eliza (22), Sarah (19) and Thomas (17); Alexander was not enumerated by the census taker. Eliza, Sarah, Thomas, and Alexander, none of whom ever married, remained on the farm for the rest of their lives.[4]

Thomas emigrated from Ireland to New Brunswick about 1819.[5] He settled at St. Andrews, at that time the most populous settlement and the seat of Charlotte County, and worked as a laborer in the 1820s.[6] Seeking land to the north of St. Andrews in St. Patrick Parish, Thomas applied by petition for, > vacant and unimproved Crown land situated on reserve number two in the County of Charlotte; being lot number 3 joining a lot this day applied for by Alexander McCann, containing one hundred acres as will appear by a reference to the plan of the late survey of the reserves in Charlotte. And your petitioner respectfully prays that he may be included in the same grant with Alexander

[3] Robert Watson to Margaret Irving, CCDeed T:5; Margaret Irving to Thomas and John Cutter, CCDeed X:204; and Henry Irving to William J Irving, CCDeed 58:422. We speculate that Margaret might have moved her children into a house on this lot when she was freshly widowed, in order that the older children might take wage jobs in town. She was residing at the farm again by 1851.

The death of Margaret's husband Thomas left her with seven children ranging in age from infancy to 14 years. In 1881 she was still living with Alexander and Sarah, and a 16-year-old Robert Irvin; her son Thomas was not listed by the census enumerator. Robert may have been her 19-year-old grandson Robert T Irvin, son of Edward. Because Robert T was also enumerated with his parents, it is likely that he was merely visiting Margaret at the time.

[5] Land Petition. The petition stated that he had been in the province seven years.

McCann, Nathaniel Eccles and Edward Lasells, whose lands now applied for join his.

The petition is dated 9 August 1826. It states that he is a British subject, born in Ireland, resident in the Province seven years, aged 28 years, and married with three children. His petition was approved on 29 March 1827.[1]

Whether Thomas ever intended to clear and farm his St. Patrick grant is unknown, but in the event, he disposed of the property, turned to the west, and on 25 May 1836 purchased and subsequently farmed and lived on land at Little Ridge, in St. James Parish. The 100-acre property, later described by son Edward as a new farm, was lot 9 in the third division of Mark's Grant, and was purchased by Thomas from James Boyd of St. Andrews for 35 pounds. Lot 9 lies on the west side of the Little Ridge road, its western line being less than a mile from the international boundary running through nearby Woodland Lake.[2]

Thomas died intestate. His burial place remains undiscovered. Because he died decades before the opening of the St. Stephen Rural Cemetery, Margaret may have followed the custom at the time and buried him on his farm. Depending on how the land was cleared, such a grave site easily could have overlooked the St. Croix River and Maine.

His son Edward purchased his farm from the other heirs in 1855. Named as grantors without specifying kinship were:

[1] Land Petition; and PANB Crown Land Grant Index 1830/12/10, 11:2643, p 422. Lasells applied for lot 1, and McCann applied for lot 2. The grant map shows lot 1 owned by Guy D Achesan, lot 2 owned by Alexander McCann, lot 3 owned by Thomas Irwin, and lot 4 owned by Nathaniel Eccles. The justice of the peace who drew up the petition for Thomas rendered his name as Thomas Irvine, and Thomas signed as Thomas Irvin. The petition was erroneously annotated, "signed Irwin," by a 20th century hand. The land grant map was also marked Irwin. The only Thomas Irvin or Irwin who subsequently appears in the records pertaining to St Patrick Parish is Thomas, son of a John Irvin and an Anne Bell. This Thomas was born in 1835 and so cannot have been the Thomas who was granted land. The grant subsequently changed hands without being recorded. The three children of Thomas mentioned in the petition correspond to John, Henry, and the gap between Henry and Edward. Having researched all Irvins who appear the archives, and finding no other contenders, we conclude that the land grant was made to the Thomas Irvin who subsequently settled at Little Ridge, and further, that Thomas never settled his land in St Patrick.

According to Dorothy Hanson, the farmhouse and barn were still in good repair in the summer of 1951, and the land was in fields. Twenty years later she found the house falling down. No buildings stand today and the farm land has grown into woods.

Children of Thomas Irvin and Margaret Jane Bell, all born in New Brunswick:

2 i. JOHN[2] IRVIN was born in June 1820.

3 ii. HENRY[2] IRVIN was born on 21 April 1822.

iii. _____[2] IRVIN[2] was born in say 1825. The existence of this child, who must have died young, is inferred from Thomas Irvin's 1826 petition for Crown lands in which he states that he has three children.

4 iv. EDWARD[2] IRVIN was born at St. Andrews on 14 June 1827.

5 v. MARY ANN[2] IRVIN was born on 14 November 1828.

vi. ELIZA[2] IRVIN[3] was born on 13 August 1829 and baptized 27 August 1829 at the St. Andrews Greenock Presbyterian Church. She died at Little Ridge on 3 August 1868[4] and was buried on 5 August in the Rural Cemetery.[5] She never married and continued to reside with her unmarried brothers and sister at Little Ridge until her death at the age of 39.

vii. SARAH[2] IRVIN[6] was born at St. Andrews about 1831. She died at Little Ridge on 11 April 1892[7] and was buried on 13 April in the Rural Cemetery.[8] She was unmarried and resided with her brothers and sister. The 1871 census states that she was "unsound from birth."

[5] SSRCRec, burial 541. Eliza Irvine died 10 days short of her 39th birthday. Her grave marker reads, "Eliza, daughter of Thomas & Margaret J Irvine; died August 3, 1868 at 39 years." The interment record erroneously gives her age as 32.

viii THOMAS[2] IRVIN[1] was born at St. Andrews on 6 October 1834. He died at Little Ridge the day after Sarah on 12 April 1892 and was buried with her the next day in the Rural Cemetery. With his brother Alexander, Thomas was co-owner of the Little Ridge farm begun by their father (see Chapter 8 for the history of the ownership of the farm). Thomas died intestate, unmarried, and without issue. Title to Thomas's half of the farm passed to Alexander, but only after the death of James Roy, husband of Thomas's sister Mary Ann, at which time Roy's children signed the deed. The deed names as grantors,

ix. ALEXANDER[2] IRVIN[3] was born at Little Ridge on 1 September 1839[1] and died there on 15 August 1927.[2] He was buried on 18 August in the Rural Cemetery.[3] Alexander and his brother Thomas owned the farm begun by their father and a meadow along the Mohannes Stream. Alexander acquired title to both parcels. He mortgaged the farm property for $195 in 1895, sold the meadow to a William Jackson in 1907, and deeded the farm to his niece Sarah Roy in 1922 (see Chapter 8 for subsequent owners of the property). In later years Sarah resided with him and kept house. He was unmarried.[4]

The deed to Alexander Irvin, written and dated in 1892, names all heirs, but does not specify lines of kinship. Separately signing in 1892 were Robert Irvin, Henry Irvin, Edward Irvin, David Embleton, and Laura Embleton. Gilbert Irvin followed in 1895. Mary Ann (Irvin) Roy died in 1905, and James Roy died in 1907. On 6 Jul 190_ (illegible last numeral), John Roy, Sarah Roy, Clara L Roy, Frank Roy, Bessie Roy, John Sprague, Margaret Sprague and Ellen Stanhope signed. The Thomas Irvin named in the deed is the son of Thomas and Margaret Jane Irvin. Because Thomas had no children or wife, his heirs were his brothers and sisters. His brother John was already dead, and by the time this deed was executed, sister Mary Ann Roy and her husband James Roy were dead, and so their children became heirs.

Second Generation

2. JOHN[2] IRVIN (Thomas[1] Irvin) was born in New Brunswick in June 1820.[5] He died in St. Stephen Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 10 March 1872[6] and was buried there on 12 March in the Rural Cemetery.[7]

He married CATHERINE GOW at St. Andrews, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 12 January 1845.[8] Catherine was born at Chamcook, in St. Andrews, on 7 October 1822, daughter of William Gow and Martha Craig (see Chapter 10 for further information on her family), and was baptized there in the Greenock Presbyterian Church on 11 October 1826.[1] She died at the Barter Settlement in St. Stephen Parish on 23 December 1878[2] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[3] Her death six years after John's passing left five children under the age of 21 years, namely, Hester (12), Herbert (15), Emily (16), Gilbert (18), and Carrie (19). Emily went to live with Frederick and Gilbert occupied an adjacent dwelling. Hester, Herbert, and Carrie remained at the farm under the care of their adult siblings Margaret, Laura, and Robert.[4]

John was a block maker in his early years, and resided with Catherine at St. Andrews in a one-story frame house.[5] By the early 1850s they had removed across the river to Robbinston, Maine, where there was a shipbuilding industry comparable to that of St. Andrews, and where John continued in the shipbuilding trade as a block and spar maker.[6] After working in Maine John was able to buy farm land in New Brunswick. He purchased 50 acres of unimproved land in St. Stephen Parish from Richard Barter on 11 February 1855, built a house and barns, and farmed (see figure 6, site 10). Later that year he added 50 more acres to his Barter Settlement holdings with a land purchase from James Roy.[7] In 1863 John was a witness to the sale of 50 acres to his brother-in-law James Roy, Jr., from James Roy, Sr.[8]

Of John's death, the St. Croix Courier reported,

George Haney, who grew up in the John Irvin farmhouse, recalls that his father had the 10' x 10' fireplace removed from the house. According to Haney, the barns were standing in 1930, but have since been torn down. John's property was adjacent to that of Robert and Mary Joy, the parents of Susanna Louise Joy.

Died at St. Stephen on 10th instant after a lingering illness, which he bore with Christian resignation to the will of God, Mr. John Irvin, aged 51 years, 9 months, leaving a wife and 10 children to mourn their loss.

John died intestate. For $450 (US) his son Frederick purchased John's lands and house from the estate in 1875. As grantors, the deed names, Martha Ann Irvin, Margaret Irving, Laura Irving, Robert Irving, Caroline Irving, William G. Irving, Emily Irving, Henry H. Irving and Hester Catherine Irving ... children and heirs of the late John Irvine...

In the deed John's widow Catherine signs for her daughter Hester, a minor. The deed was subject to the widow's right of dower, Catherine was not among the grantors, and grantors other than Hester were minors. For whatever reason, Frederick's title apparently was void. In 1885, subsequent to Catherine's death, and with Hester not quite 21, the heirs again sold the property, this time for $800 (NB) to David Embleton, husband of John's daughter Laura (see Chapter 9 for the history of ownership of the farm to the present time). Listed as grantors were,

Martha Ann Hickey, Margaret Irving, Laura Irving, Frederick Irving, Robert Irving, Caroline Irving, William G. Irving, Emily Irving, Henry H. Irving and Hester Catherine Irving (and Emma Irving wife of Frederick Irving) all of the Parish of St. Stephen, County of Charlotte and Province of New Brunswick, and Michael Hickey (related by marriage) of Calais, State of Maine, children and heirs of the late John Irving of the same place.[1]

Children of John Irvin and Catherine Gow:

i. HENRY[3] IRVINE was born about 1845,[2] probably at St. Andrews. He died in St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 19 July 1863[3] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[4] The New Brunswick Courier states,

> On the afternoon of Sabbath last, Henry Irving, a young man of 18 years of age, son of Mr. John Irving of Barter Settlement, was drowned in the Mahannas Stream, near St. Stephen, while bathing in company with several young companions. This sad event has elicited the deepest feelings of sorrow and sympathy, iv. MARGARET[3] IRVINE was born at Robbinston, Washington County, Maine, on 16 April 1850.[3] She died at Calais, Washington County, Maine, on 23 September 1931[4] and was buried in the Calais Cemetery.[5] In 1896 she was a domestic servant for Charles B. Rounds of Calais. By 1901 she had her own household in St. Stephen. For most of her life she resided with her sister Martha in Calais. She was unmarried.[6]

v. LAURA[3] IRVINE was born in the United States, probably at Robbinston, on 8 April 1853.[7] She died at the Barter Settlement on 27 February 1908[8] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[9]

She married DAVID EMBLETON, at St. Stephen on 28 November 1885.[1] David was born in New Brunswick on 22 July 1854.[2] He died at the Barter Settlement on 19 May 1924[3] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[4]

He was a house painter in business with Robert Cleland. He and Laura lived on her father's farmstead at the Barter Settlement. They had no children.[5]

David left no will. His estate was probated in Charlotte County in 1924. The deed by which his heirs sold his land names and gives the relationships of several Embleton brothers and sisters, all deceased, and all their children and spouses. Among them is Robert A. Cleland, son and heir of Jane Twisel Cleland, deceased, sister of David Embleton.[6] See Chapter 9 for the history of subsequent ownership of the farm.

9 ix. WILLIAM GILBERT[3] IRVINE was born at the Barter Settlement on 1 January, in 1860 or 1861.

x. EMILY JEAN[3] IRVINE was born at the Barter Settlement on 23 April 1862.[2] She died at Cedar Grove, Essex County, New Jersey, on 17 August 1943. She was buried at Newark, Essex County, New Jersey, on 21 August in the Fairmount Cemetery.[3]

She married GEORGE SANFORD DEVOR, at Newark on 1 April 1890.[4] George was born in New Jersey, on 25 May 1849,[5] son of James DeVor and Mary Babbett. He died at South Orange, Essex County, New Jersey, on 10 December 1912 and was buried on 12 December in the Fairmount Cemetery.[6]He was a carpenter. By 1910 the census listed him as having no trade.[7]

Emily was baptized 10 May 1875 at the Methodist Church in Milltown, New Brunswick.[8] In 1881, three years after her widowed mother's death, she was 19 years old, and living in the household of her brother Frederick and his wife. Next door on one side was brother Gilbert, and on the other side was her childhood home, occupied by Robert, Maggie, Carrie, Herbert and Hester.[9] Emily removed to New Jersey in 1888, two years before marrying. She resided at South Orange. After George became unemployed she took in boarders. She had no children.[10]

She was baptized 10 May 1875 at the Milltown Methodist Church.[4] In 1896 she was working at the cotton mill at Milltown and boarding with her brother Robert.[5] Sometime after 1912 she removed to South Orange, New Jersey to reside with her sister Emily. At the time of her death Hester was living in East Orange at 9 Stockton Place. She was unmarried.[6]

The lot is adjacent to that of Henry Irvin's sister Eliza. The interment records of the Rural Cemetery are considerably less reliable than the monuments erected by the families. For example, Henry's burial is recorded in two lots; interment 2724, Thomas Irvin lot at 26 east side of Linden Path, 3 Mar 1902; and interment number 2724, Henry Irvin lot at 25 east side of Linden Path, 3 Mar 1902. Henry's wife Jane is recorded only for lot 26. However, the diagram for lot 25 shows Jane and Hugh, and no others.

He married (1) MARGARET FORSYTH in Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 13 July 1845.[1] Margaret was born in New Brunswick about 1823.[2] She died in say 1853 after the birth of her daughter Eliza.

He married (2) JANE GRAY MCWHORTER in Charlotte County on 24 April 1855.[3] She was from St. Stephen, and was born at St. Andrews, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, about 1825.[4] She died at St. Stephen on 26 May 1888[5] and was buried on 28 May in the Rural Cemetery.[6]

Henry was a caulker. He resided in St. Stephen on King Street near Queen Street (see figure 6, site 14).[7] On 17 February 1902, shortly before his death, Henry deeded lot 22 in St. Stephen, which he had purchased from his widowed mother Margaret in 1854, to his son William J. Irvin.[8]

ii. JANE[3] IRVIN was born about 1847.[11] The 1871 census listed her as a house servant living with her parents.

Witnesses to the marriage were Joseph McWhirty and Agnes Douglas. Her son Alexander's obituary gives her name as Gray. The marriage record for Henry Irvin and Jane McWhorter, dated the year before the birth of Jane's first child, is probably for the same person. We speculate that Gray was her maiden name and McWhorter was the name of a first husband. In the alternative, the informant for Alexander's obituary may simply have been wrong. A clue to the connection to the Gray name may lie in the 1851 census listing for the household of Isabella Gray in St David Parish. The household comprised Isabella Grey, mother, age 34, Scotch, farmer and "Hr. of late Wm. Douglas, Prop," entry to colony 1821; and her children, all with the surname Douglas and born in NB: Agnes, 14; William, 11; James, 9; John, 7; and Mary, 4.

At the time of his death, he was the last survivor of what his obituary described as "the old guard" of the department. For much of his life he was a ship's caulker for James Murchie & Sons. Later in life he was the driver of a retail team of horses for Budd & Grimmer. He resided with his father in St. Stephen on King Street near Queen.[10] He was unmarried.[11]

Alexander was born and died at his father's home on King Street. He never married. In his last years he shared his home with Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Jordan.[5] His obituary reported,

> As a young man he was employed in lumbering in this vicinity, and some 40 years ago was a driver of the hose cart for the Fire Department. It gave him pleasure to renew these associations. He left that position to go to the West, where he spent 21 years, many of them as foreman of lumber camps for Samuel Hunter of St. Stephen; in Minnesota, and here at Revelstake (Revelstoke, British Columbia) and other points in the Western United States, and Canada. Returning home, he engaged in trucking which he carried on until failing health forced him to give up active work this year.[6]

When in St. Stephen he resided with his father on King Street.[7] His obit further stated,

> He was an enthusiastic member of the Knights of Pythias, a charter member of Frontier Lodge, and holder of various offices in the order. He had traveled widely on the North American Continent in connection with Lodge activities. When the Orangemen were active here he was also a member of that fraternity.[8]

He married (1) SARAH ANNE CAMPBELL TRIMBLE at St. Stephen on 12 October 1856.[4] They were married with consent of parents. Sarah was born at Mayfield, St. Stephen Parish, on 27 March 1839, daughter of Simon Trimble and Catherine Trimble.[5] She died at Little Ridge, St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 5 August 1871[6] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[7]

He married (2) MARY CAROLINE TRIMBLE at Little Ridge on 3 December 1872.[8] Mary was born at Mayfield, St. Stephen Parish, on 15 April 1837, daughter of Simon Trimble and Catherine Trimble.[9] She died on 9 April 1876 and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[10]

He married (3) CHARLOTTE HALL THOMPSON at St. Stephen on 9 August 1880.[1] Charlotte was born in New Brunswick on 21 June 1846, daughter of Cyrus A. Thompson and Harriet Hall.[2] She died at St. Stephen on 8 December 1908[3] and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[4] In her last days she was cared for by her stepdaughter Sarah Strange, during which time her stepson Thomas came from Colorado to visit her. In her will, made in 1905 with the expressed consent and approval of Edward, she names her husband Edward Irvin, her step-daughter Sarah Catherine Irvin, and two stepsons, Thomas A. Irvin and Jeremiah Irvin; and leaves her estate, comprising the house on Water Street and its contents, to her step-daughter Sarah.[5]

Edward was a farmer and sometimes river driver and caulker.[6] As his first property, in 1855 he purchased his father's 75-acre Little Ridge farm from his mother and siblings for 100 pounds.[7] Having no local church, Edward and two other men of the Little Ridge community formed a committee for the purpose of purchasing land for a church building. Edward, John C. Weatherbee, and Hugh Thompson paid 5 shillings to John and Mahala McKeeman on 4 August 1860 for a lot on the west side of Little Ridge Road adjacent to the Thomas Irvin farm, measuring 4 rods by 6 rods. The church that was subsequently built still stands.[8] A few months later, Edward sold the 75-acre family farm to his brothers Thomas and Alexander as two halves.[9] Edward and Alexander co-purchased 180 acres in St. James Parish, known as Prescott Meadows, from James Frink in 1865.[10]

Edward continued his farming operations at Mayfield, an area in St. Stephen Parish near the St. James line also known as the Getchell Settlement (see figure 6, site 9).[1] He was living at Mayfield in 1878, as evidenced by his signature on a joint letter of St. James freeholders for the purpose of building a cross road between Mayfield and Barter Settlement.[2] Continuing their land consolidations, in 1884 Edward and Charlotte sold a lot on the Mohannes Stream in St. James Parish.[3]

Devastation visited Edward and Charlotte on 16 May 1887 when their Mayfield house and barn burned.[4] Soon after they were burned out they purchased a house in St. Stephen on Water Street (now Milltown Avenue) near the iron bridge and the present site of the Ferry Point bridge (see figure 6, site 8).[5] The next year he and Charlotte sold 41 acres of their Mayfield farm to their son Thomas. The acreage lay between the Scotch Ridge road and the Rural Cemetery.[6] Edward was still listed as a farmer in the late 1890s but in 1903 the local directory listed him as a real estate agent.[7] At the age of 91 he could be seen scything his lawn.[8] He was a

iv. THOMAS ALEXANDER[3] IRVIN[3] was born on 18 July 1867, and baptized on 17 September 1867 in St. James Parish.[4] He died at Idaho Springs, Clear Creek County, Colorado, on 8 January 1910.[5]

The St. Croix Courier reported on 4 August 1892, "Mr. T. A. Irvin's valuable brood mare, Bessie G., was badly bitten by a dog on Sunday last."[6]

Sometime in the mid-1890s Thomas left New Brunswick for the American west. In Colorado he attended law school, and in 1897 graduated from the University of Denver with an LL.B. degree.[7] By 1900 he was living at Idaho Springs with Sarah B. Thompson. She was 63, and is described in the census record as his foster mother. Sarah died in 1905 and left $15,000 to Tom.[8] Thomas was active in the mining business and maintained offices at 407 Colorado Building in Denver. He owned the Garden and Justice mines, was a mining and legal advisor for Denver capitalists, and did some work in Mexico and California.[9]

According to a Denver obituary republished in the St. Croix Courier, the body of Thomas was found near the Justice mine, which he owned, in lower Russell Gulch, after his horse returned riderless to the livery barn in Denver. Funeral services were to be held at the Elks Club in Denver, and the body was to be cremated at the Riverside Cemetery. The cremated remains were actually interred at Forest Hills Cemetery in Boston, Massachusetts.[1] At the time of his death, Thomas had defaulted on his third of a $3000 loan and owed $550 to his sister Sarah. The $3000 loan was for part ownership in two patents. One patent was for pliers and the other was for a stamp-dispensing machine. After his debts and expenses were paid, the residual paid $10 each to his father, brother Jeremiah, and sister Sarah; and $766.47 to Miss Demeris Moon of Lubec, Maine.[2]

[3] James and Mary A Roy, 1861 census St Stephen; James and Mary Ann Roy, 1871 census St Stephen; James and Mary A Roy, 1881 census Milltown; and CCDeed 67:555. The census records of 1861, 1871, and 1881 for the household of James and Mary Roy show the names of three daughters born after Margaret and before Sarah, but no more than two of these names appear in any one record. Harriet, 4, and Ann, 1, appear in 1861. In 1871, Harriet is 12, and Ann is not listed. Ellen appears for the first time in 1881 at the age of 17, but neither Harriet nor Ann are listed in 1881. Of these three names, only Ellen appears in the 1892 deed from the heirs of Thomas Irvin II to Alexander Irvin, which names all living children of James and Mary Ann Roy. We believe that Ellen is the same person as either Harriet or Ann, and that Ann or Harriet must have died young. In support of this opinion are the following: 1) the ages of the family members given in the three census records are off by three years, 2) Mary Ellen may have been born as early as 1858 (age 81 in interment record) or as late as 1864 (calculation from age given in 1881 census), and 3) the Rural Cemetery has no interment record or stone for Ann or Harriet. If Ann is the deceased daughter, she may have been buried elsewhere, before or just after the Rural Cemetery first opened. We are satisfied that Annie Louise Roy, born about 1872, daughter of George Roy II, granddaughter of George Roy I, and great-granddaughter of James Roy I, and who married three times, is not the same person as the aforementioned Ann Roy appearing in the 1861 census.

She married MICHAEL HICKEY at Calais on 8 May 1876.[7] Michael was born at Calais on 20 August 1847, son of William Hickey and Bridget Morrisey.[8] He died at Calais on 26 January 1897[9] and was buried on 28 January in the Calais Cemetery.[10] During the Civil War he served in the U.S. Army from 5 February 1860 to 6 July 1865. The 1901 census gives a birth date of 30 Jan 1877, which is clearly inconsistent with having been listed as alive in the 1871 census. The date of 1877 is inconsistent with the 1881 census also. The birth day of 30 Jan is probably correct, and the best estimate of the birth year is 1868, based on the census records of 1871 and 1881.

When they were young the other side of the house was occupied by Michael's mother Bridget and his brother James.[1] Michael was a teamster. In the year before his death the Calais directory listed his occupation as "invalid."[2] He is buried in the Roman Catholic section of the Calais Cemetery near the Protestant grave site of his wife Martha.

Before marrying, Martha may have been a housekeeper; a Martha Irvin, age about 25 years, is recorded in the 1870 census as a domestic servant in the household of Jack Kimball of Calais.[3]

She died at Calais on 19 April 1958 and was buried on 22 April in the Calais Cemetery.[8] After the death of John, she resided in Calais at 3 Chandler Street.

Although John lived in Calais, in town, his occupation at the time he died was listed as farmer. He died at Calais Hospital after the taxicab in which he was a passenger, driven by Norman Waycott, crashed into a tree on Hinckley Hill in Calais. John and Gertrude had no children.[9]

Frederick was a gardener for the Charles F. Todd family, and then after C. F. Todd's death, for Senator I. R. Todd. For the first few years of his marriage, he resided at Barter Settlement between his father's farmhouse and the adjacent house of the Joy family. The wedding certificate indicates the trend toward the spelling Irvine rather than Irvin. Frederick signed his name "Irvin," and his sister Carrie, a witness, signed her name "Irvine." Frederick subsequently adopted "Irvine."

[4] Charles Frank Irvine, BthRgLate, citing place of birth for Emma Irvine as Princeton, Maine; and Mrs Frederick Irvine, obit, Courier (23 Dec 1909). Vernard J Irvine, although uncertain, thought that Emma was born Emma Rita Richardson, and was first married to a Mr Teed. No documents have been found to support or refute this idea. The marriage certificate lists her surname as Teed, does not state that she was a widow, and does not give the names of her parents. We have yet to find a marriage record for Emma Richardson to a Mr Teed, or a death or burial for Mr. Teed. The birth certificate for Emma's son Charles states that Emma was born in Princeton, Maine. The 1870 US census for Princeton has the household of Frances J Richardson, keeping a boarding house, with children Charles G, 14; Eva J; and Emma, 8. None of the 15 boarders were Teeds, Richardsons, or Irvines. This family is not found in the 1860 census for Washington County. In the 1870 census, Robbinston (p 2, dwelling 7, family 8) has the household of Robert W Teed; wife Emily; children Emma J, 6; and Minnie M, 3; and then a Charles, 67; and a Susan, 68. In 1880, this Robbinston family comprised Robert, 37, farmer; Emily, 38; Jemire E (? Emma), 18; Margaret, 13; Charles, 8; Nellie, 4; and Alice M, 2 (dwelling 85, family 89). If the story of Emma being previously married to Teed is incorrect, then her maiden name may have been Teed, and the Robbinston family is probably hers. A Robbinston origin would be favored by the fact that the John Irvin family was in Robbinston when Frederick was born.

VR. Not listed in the 1861 census. The 1871 census gives the age as 9 for a calculated birth year of 1861 or 1862. The 1881 census gives the age as 19, for a calculated birth year of 1861 or 1862. The 1891 census gives an age of 30, for a birthdate of 1860 or 1861. The 1901 census gives the age as 37, and the birth date as 27 Dec 1863. The 1910 census gives an age of 42, yielding a calculated birth year of 1867. Clara, the likely informant, ostensibly aged less than ten years between the later decennial censuses, and probably understated her age. Birth dates on the 1901 population schedules were often calculated from ages given to the enumerator. Vernard died at Ipswich on 30 November 1925[1] and was buried on 3 December in the Highland Cemetery.[2] Clara and Robert were married at her parent's home by her uncle, the Rev. William J. Stewart. Robert and Clara were residing at Milltown, New Brunswick, when the St. George village of Bonney River burned in 1903. The fire extended north to Second Falls, where it consumed the Baptist Church attended by the Johnsons and Stewarts.[3] After removing to Ipswich, she taught Sunday school at the Methodist Church, was chaplain of the American Legion Auxiliary, and was a member of the Rebekah lodge.[4]

Three years after marrying, Robert sold two parcels of land, one of which was the 50-acre tract that had been purchased by his father John from James Roy in 1855. Both parcels were in the vicinity of Little Ridge Road and Barter Settlement Road in St. Stephen Parish.[5] By 1890 Robert and Clara were living in a frame house he had built on Queen's Way in Milltown, New Brunswick (see figure 6, site 2). The home was mortgaged much of the time.[6] As members of the Methodist Church in Milltown, Robert and Clara rented half a pew at the rate of $2.50 per year.[7] Robert was a carpenter at the local cotton mill.[8]

Apparently motivated by better wages elsewhere, in 1901 he worked away from home, helping to construct the new Oxford Paper Company mill at Rumford in western Maine. While there he signed over his rights in a land parcel being sold by his ailing mother-in-law.[9]

J Irvine gave a date of 1861 in a 1969 interview, and the grave marker, likely paid for by Vernard, gives the date as 1861. The death certificate, for which the informant was son Lloyd, gives an age of 62 years, 11 months and 3 days, giving a calculated birth year of 1862. The obit in the Salem News gives the age as 62.

Many of the burned buildings at Bonney River were reconstructed, but the village declined. By 1935 the railway service between St Stephen and Bonney River, undoubtedly used in prior years by Clara and Robert during their courtship, had ceased. The tracks and the Canadian Pacific Railroad station at Bonney River were removed in 1954.

Clara's brother and sisters had removed to New England, and wrote letters urging Robert and Clara to come to Massachusetts. Robert first tested the idea by working temporarily in Beverly, Massachusetts, home of Clara's sister Nellie (Johnson) Cole. The Calais Advertiser recorded his departure on 27 March 1905 in the company of another carpenter, J.S. Towers. After this initial foray, Robert, Clara, and their sons left Milltown and removed to Ipswich, a town near Beverly, on Saturday, 2 September 1905.[1] In Ipswich, home of Clara's sister Jesse (Johnson) Morton and brother David Johnson, Robert continued to pursue the carpenter trade and rented a series of houses in town.[2]

Children of Robert Irvine and Clara Johnson, all born at Milltown, New Brunswick:

23 i. GEORGE MAYNARD[4] IRVINE was born on 19 May 1886.

ii. HAROLD WILFRED[4] IRVINE was born on 29 May 1889.[3] He died at Milltown on 13 June 1891[4] and was buried at St. Stephen on 15 June in the Rural Cemetery.[5] Three days before he died Wilbur's parents had him baptized by the minister of the Milltown Methodist Church.[6]

24 iii. VERNARD JOHNSON[4] IRVINE was born on 2 March 1892.

iv. HAZEN ROBERT[4] IRVINE was born on 6 April 1894.[7] He died at Worcester, Worcester County, Massachusetts, on 5 August 1986. He was buried at Ipswich on 7 August in the Cowles Memorial Cemetery.[8]

He married MARY ELIZABETH (BRADY) KNOWLES[1] at Ipswich on 17 October 1941. Mary was born at Boston, Suffolk County, Massachusetts, on 21 June 1913, daughter of Thomas Francis Brady and Mary Elizabeth O'Neill. She died at Wilmington, New Castle County, Delaware, on 25 June 1986. Her unclaimed remains were buried by the state at New Castle, Delaware, on 13 August 1986 in New Potter's Field. When she married Hazen, Mary was a divorcee working as an inspector for the Hygrade Lamp Corporation. By 1944 Mary and Hazen were separated and she was employed as a letter carrier, residing alone at 34 North Main Street, Ipswich.[2] She later removed to Delaware.[3] She subsequently resided in Wilmington.

As a young man, Hazen was an exceptional athlete.[4] In World War I he served as a private 1st class in the U.S. Army.[5] In 1919 he became a naturalized U.S. citizen.[6] On his return from the war Hazen worked in Ipswich as a shipping clerk for a manufacturer of machinery.[7] For most of his working life, he was a letter carrier for the U.S. Post Office.[8] In the late 1930s Hazen boarded at 40 Market Street in Ipswich. Later he boarded with his brother Lloyd's family.[9]

He married (1) SUSANNA LOUISE JOY in Charlotte County on 29 July 1878.[3] Susanna was born in New Brunswick on July 1861, daughter of Robert Arthur Joy and Mary Lydia Getchell.[4] She died at the Barter Settlement on 23 January 1883[5] and was buried in the Joy-Getchell lot of the Rural Cemetery with a marker inscribed, "Susanna, wife of Gilbert Irvine."[6] In their first years of marriage Gilbert and Louise resided with her parents. After her death Louise's sons lived for a time in the household of their Uncle Frederick Irvine.[7]

He married (2) DORA ALMA COOK at St. Stephen on 10 May 1898.[8] Alma was born at St. David Ridge, St. David Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 15 June 1871, daughter of Josephus Cook and Jane McKnight, and was baptized 8 October 1871 at St. David Methodist Church.[9] She died at St. Stephen on 25 November 1959 and was buried on 29 November in the Rural Cemetery.[10]

While married into the Joy family, Gilbert seems to have pursued farming, as evidenced by his 1882 purchase of a 20-acre parcel on the west side of Mohannnes Stream from his father-in-law, Robert A. Joy, for one hundred dollars.[11] Later Gilbert made his living in Milltown as a carpenter

After the death of their mother, John and his brother Arthur were raised by their Uncle Frederick and Aunt Emma Irvine until their father remarried.[4] By 1901 he was employed at the St. Croix cotton mill.[5] Within a few years John had left his parents' home for Massachusetts.[6] There he was employed as a carpenter's foreman for the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in Boston and resided at Dorchester.[7]

In May of 1919 John purchased a dairy farm at Wilmot Flat, New Hampshire. At the 60-acre Echo Farm, located on what later became Pancake Road, he kept some two dozen dairy cows. The house and barn had no electricity. Spring water was piped under gravity to the kitchen and then passed to the barn to supply the cows with drinking water. Postal and rail service was provided by the nearby village of Potter Place in the town of Andover. The name of the farm derived from the reflection of sound between the farmhouse and the hill across the road. The farm was sold by John's estate in 1959.[8]

He married CELIA MARIE CONLIN at Milford on 25 January 1905.[5] Celia was born at Milford on 20 September 1878, daughter of James Conlin and Bridget Scanlon. She died at Hopedale on 30 or 31 December 1944 and was buried in St. Mary's Cemetery.[6]

Herbert was baptized on 10 May 1875 in Milltown.[7] He removed to Massachusetts about 1900, and was residing at Boston at the time of the great molasses flood in the North End. In Boston Herbert worked as a meat cutter and then moved to Milford where he was a gardener. Then he became the caretaker of the estate of grocer Henry Lyman Patrick on Hopedale Street in the adjacent town of Hopedale. At the estate Herbert was responsible for the maintenance of the gardens and orchards and for the upkeep of Mr. Patrick's cow and two pairs of horses. He delivered the grocer's milk with a horse-drawn wagon, and was said to have loved horses. Because Herbert and Celia lived in a house on the estate, their children enjoyed free run of the grounds. After the Patrick estate was sold in 1939

She married JOHN ALFRED STOKHAM about 1871. Alfred was born in Quebec Province in May 1847, son of John and Sarah J. Stokham.[4] He died at Newport, Orleans County, Vermont, on 25 May 1923.[5] His remains were transported to Massachusetts and buried on 27 May in the Edson Cemetery.[6] After marrying, Alfred and Eliza worked a farm (probably his parents' farm) at Stanbridge, Missisquoi County, Quebec. In 1881 their household included several children and Lucium H____, a 15-year-old boy of German extraction who was probably a farm hand. Alfred and Eliza left Quebec for the United States about 1885 and by 1892 were in Lowell, where he worked as a laborer. Alfred became a US citizen in 1895.[7] The Lowell street directories from 1892 to 1902 list Alfred at 56 London Street, domiciled not with Eliza but with his widowed mother Sarah. The directories further state that Sarah removed to Newport, Vermont, in 1900.[8] He was residing at Newport at the time of his death.[9]

The 1900 census gives his birth date as May 1847. The death record gives his birth date as 1851 with no month or day. Both records give the place of birth as Canada. The 1871 census lists the Stokham household as comprising John (58), Sarah (54), Sylvester (27), Alfred (23) and Maria (18). John apparently died before 1881; Sarah appears in several census records in the household of Alfred and is buried in Lowell with him. Alfred's death record lists his parents as William Stokham and Nancy Brown; we believe this to be incorrect in light of the foregoing.

Children of Eliza Irvin and John Alfred Stokham:

i. JENNIE MARIE[4] STOKHAM[2] was born at Stanbridge on May 1873. She died at Lowell on 7 May 1941 and was buried in the Edson Cemetery.[3]

She married EDWARD FRANK LEITH, at Providence, Providence County, Rhode Island, on 14 June 1899.[4] Edward[5] was born in Quebec Province about 1874, son of John E. Leith and Margaret N. Tucker. He died at Chelmsford, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, in October 1928 and was buried in the Edson Cemetery.[6] He and Jennie entered the United States about 1888. He was a grocer at the time of their marriage, and then a salesman for the Robertson Furniture Company on Prescott Street in Lowell.

Jennie and Edward resided with her brother Henry in Chelmsford at Brick Kiln Road, near Carleton Avenue. They had no children.[7] 32 ii. ALICE[4] STOKHAM was born in Quebec Province about 1874.

33 iii. HENRY A.[4] STOKHAM was born in Quebec Province on 5 June 1876.

iv. BERTHA[4] STOKHAM was born in Quebec Province or Newport, Vermont, on 21 March 1879.[8] She died at Lowell

[1] None of Eliza's siblings appear with the surname Irvin in the 1871 and 1881 censuses for Missisquoi County, and none appear in Stanbridge in 1891. We surmise that she removed to Stanbridge from New Brunswick on her own.

v. CHARLES W.[4] STOKHAM[2] was born in Quebec Province in December 1880.[3] He died after 1941.[4]

He married HELEN C. BOYLE at Lowell on 8 November 1905.[5] Helen was born in Canada about 1887, daughter of Joseph Boyle and Anna Hackett.[6] She died at Lowell on 23 April 1926.[7] She entered the United States as a young child. At the time of her marriage she had been residing at Calais, Maine, with her parents.[8]

As a young man Charles lived with his parents and worked as a bullet molder for the U.S. Cartridge Company. Later he was a brakeman for the railroad.[9] He removed to Boston after 1929.[10]

vi. BURTON J. IRVIN[4] STOKHAM was born in Canada on 9 March 1883.[11] He died in June 1975.[12]

He married ALICE MALLOY. Alice[13] was born on 6 August 1886 and died in August, 1977.

Burton attended the Lowell Technical School and worked as a textile chemist in Lowell.[14] He became a US citizen in 1905.[1] With his brother Ernest he owned the Fallkill Aniline and Chemical Company at Wappingers Falls, New York. At one time the U.S. Army commissioned him to conduct research on dyes and waterproofing. He resided at Poughkeepsie, New York, and was an accomplished amateur photographer. He had no children.[2]

vii. GRACE FRANCES[4] STOKHAM[3] was born at Lowell on 31 December 1892.[4] She died there on 14 June 1976 and was buried in the Edson Cemetery.[5]

After graduating from the Lowell Business College she supervised a doctor's office in Lowell and lived with her mother. She was a Girl Guides leader and the first Girl Scout leader in the Merrimack Valley. After her mother's death, Grace removed to Calais, Maine, where she lived at 20 Monroe Street with the Ella Lowther family. She commuted across the border to work at the Ganong chocolate factory and the Jane Todd Candy Company. Following the death of her brother Ernest's wife Alice, and prior to 1941, Grace removed back to Lowell to care for Ernest's orphaned children. At the time of her death she resided outside Lowell in nearby Pepperell.[6]

34 viii. ERNEST FRANCIS[4] STOKHAM was born at Lowell on 16 December 1895. See figure 8.

12. ANNIE JOAN[3] IRVIN (Henry[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[7] was born in New Brunswick on 13 August 1862 and died at Basswood Ridge, St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 12 November 1956. She was buried at St. Stephen, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 14 November in the Rural Cemetery.[8]

She married WILLIAM CARMICHAEL at St. Stephen on 12 March 1890. William[9] was born in New Brunswick on 22 April 1861. He died at [2] Dorothy Hanson, interview and notes. Annie was deaf, could not read, was well liked, and was kind to children. Like many in her family, she was a redhead, and was tall. Dot Hanson recalls that the Edward Irvin family from the Little Ridge farmstead would ride a two-wheel buggy to the Carmichael house:

When I went to visit her, Gram Carmicheal would give me a huge plate and tell me to get what I wanted to eat. There were crocks of doughnuts and all kinds of sugar, molasses, peanut butter and date-filled cookies. There were fruitcake, gingerbread and other cakes. Pies of all kinds and crocks of cold milk and buttermilk. This was such a treat, to eat until you couldn't hold any more. What amazed me about Gram was that she couldn't read or write but could turn out the best sweets. I watched her mixing up her cooking. She measured her molasses by so many gulps from the jug; so many handfuls of sugar or flour. Spices and salt were measured by the amount she could hold between her first finger and thumb. To test the oven she put her hand in the oven until it felt hot enough to cook. In spring she gathered maple sap and made maple syrup, maple sugar and maple cream by boiling the sap on the stove.

In winter my father would take the whole family to Gram's. He would hook up the horses to the sleigh, cover us up with buffalo robes and off we would go. We went about 3½ miles to get there. We would get there in time for dinner, and what a feast! We would leave soon after dinner and get home as the sun was going down. Christmas dinner was great; she had all kinds of vegetables, a huge goose, and gravy and desserts. Gram saved the grease from the goose to treat croup. She always gave us a large bottle of this grease.

Another thing I remember is Gram's birthday. It was in August each year. Friends and neighbors from far and wide came to wish her well. I can remember there would be up to 10 birthday cakes and homemade ice cream to eat. I always waited for this occasion each year. Gram loved to play cards. She loved to win and would laugh so hard her stomach would shake. I always thought Gram was the greatest.

Lynnfield, St. James Parish, on 10 July 1892, son of John Millen Trafton and Carrie Adelaide Nixon.[1] He died at Milltown on 19 July 1974 and was buried on 22 July in the Rural Cemetery.[2] He worked in the woods for many years before taking a job with the New Brunswick Department of Public Works as a road supervisor. After Alice died he began spending winters in Milltown to live with Alice's niece Eva (Moulton) Grimmer and her husband George, and eventually settled there permanently.[3]

Alice, known to her nieces as "Mainee," worked the farm, kept house, and at times worked in the woods. She and George had no children. They resided at St. David Ridge after they were married and moved to Basswood Ridge to live with her mother Annie after the death of William Carmichael. The house at Basswood Ridge still stands but has been vacant since George moved out.[4]

13. MARGARET FLORENCE[3] IRVIN (Henry[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[5] was born at St. Stephen, New Brunswick, on 15 December 1866.[6] She died at Moore's Mills, St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 3 February 1954. She was buried at Loch Lomond, St. John County, New Brunswick, on 5 February in the Lakeside Cemetery.[7]

She married (1) CAPT. WILLIAM GREARSON at St. Stephen on 5 March 1890.[8] William was born at Calais, Washington County, Maine, on 14 November 1868, son of William Grearson and Susan McVicker. He died at Machias, Washington County, Maine, on 13 February 1939. The death record gives his cause of death as "acute ingestion;" whereas his granddaughter Dorothy Hanson states that William hanged himself in jail. He was a mariner and resided at Calais.[1]

She married (2) JOHN DOUGLAS. He died at Saint John, St. John County, New Brunswick, on 28 January 1949, and was buried in the Lakeside Cemetery.[2] Jack and Maggie had no children. After marrying Jack Douglas, Maggie resided at Willow Grove, St. John County, New Brunswick. When John died Maggie moved in with her son Henry and his wife Hazel.[3]

Children of Margaret Florence Irvin and Capt. William Grearson:

i. ARTHUR[4] GREARSON.[4] He died young.

36 ii. HENRY IRVING[4] GREARSON was born 8 April 1890.

14. JEREMIAH[3] IRVIN (Edward[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[5] was born at Mayfield, St. Stephen Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick on 18 May 1870, and was baptized on 29 July 1870 in St. James Parish.[6] He died at New Bedford, Bristol County, Massachusetts, on 24 January 1957[7] and was buried at nearby Acushnet, Bristol County, Massachusetts.

He married ELISABETHA KATHARINA (BAUMGARTEL) CHAPMAN in say 1910. Katy was born in Germany on 9 October 1885.[8] She died on 22 August 1968 and was buried at Acushnet. She emigrated to the United States about 1886.[9] She was the widow of Wilhelm Schachner, also known as William Chapman. With him she had two children, Laura May Schachner and Arthur William Chapman, both of whom on reaching adulthood took the surname Irvin.

[3] According to Dorothy Hanson, Maggie was a tall, large-boned, gruff, rough-mannered, profane, hard-drinking, redheaded woman who told her grandchildren that she would scratch their eyes out. Dot writes:

> Grammy Douglas was a real character. She came to live with us when her husband died. She was a big tall woman with a love of tobacco and drink. She smoked a corn cob pipe or a clay pipe and would occasionally smoke a cigar. An incident I can remember was when my mother died. We had three dogs that we put in the basement. During the funeral service, the dogs began to act up and Grammy Douglas got up with her cane and thumped the floor with her cane and said, "Shut up you bastards."

Jeremiah, known later as Jerry, worked in a Calais shoe factory, and then removed from New Brunswick to New Bedford, where he worked as a loom fixer in a cotton mill and was an elder in the Presbyterian Church.[1]

Children of Jeremiah Irvin and Elisabetha Katharina (Baumgartel) Chapman:

i. LAURA MARY[4] IRVIN[2] was born at White Rock, Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island, on 24 October 1904.[3] She died at New Bedford on 25 April 1981.

She married ALBERT RIENDEAU between 1933 and 1936. Albert and Laura were divorced about 1955.[4]

Laura followed her public schooling with a secretarial course at the Kenyon Business School in New Bedford, after which she was a bookkeeper for the New Bedford News and later for other New Bedford concerns. She had no children.

ii. ARTHUR WILLIAM[4] IRVIN[5] was born at Attleborough, Bristol County, Massachusetts, on 18 August 1906.[6] He died at New Bedford on 26 June 1986 and was buried there in the Pine Grove Cemetery.

He married GLADYS E. TURNER in 1927. Gladys was born at Attleborough on 19 November 1908, daughter of James W. Turner and Sarah H. Gregory. She died at New Bedford on 20 October 1983.

As a representative for the New Bedford News Company Arthur was responsible for sales to Cape Cod. Later he worked for other area firms that distributed newspapers, magazines, and novelties. At one time his territory was upstate New York.

iii. FLORENCE CATHERINE[4] IRVIN[1] was born at New Bedford on 9 August 1911, died there on 25 April 1981, and was buried at Acushnet. After graduating from New Bedford High School in 1929 she attended and graduated from the Framingham (Massachusetts) Normal School in 1931. For the next ten years she worked at the Manhattan Market and was then a waitress at the Wamsutta Club and a cafeteria worker at St. Luke's Hospital, all in New Bedford. Her teacher training was put to use at the Sunday school of New Bedford's First Presbyterian Church where she was the superintendent. She was unmarried.

37 iv. MARGARET LOUISA[4] IRVIN was born at New Bedford on 12 September 1913.

v. HARRIET ELIZABETH[4] IRVIN[2] was born at New Bedford on 24 June 1915. After graduating from New Bedford High School in 1933, she entered nurse's training, graduated from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in New Bedford in 1936, and stayed there as a nurse. Seeking more reasonable work conditions, in 1943 she became an industrial nurse for the Goodyear plant in New Bedford, where she remained until her retirement in 1974. She serves St. Luke's Hospital as a volunteer in the gift shop. She is unmarried and resides at New Bedford.[3]

38 vi. EDWARD JEREMIAH[4] IRVIN was born at New Bedford on 4 March 1917.

15. SARAH CATHERINE[3] IRVIN (Edward[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[4] was born at Mayfield, St. Stephen Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 10 August 1875.[5] She died at Toronto, Ontario, on 26 May 1963 and was buried at St. Stephen on 28 May in the Rural Cemetery.[6]

She married JOHN LIVINGSTONE STRANGE in St. Stephen Parish on 3 June 1908.[1] Livingstone was born at St. Stephen on 24 May 1877, son of Joseph Strange and Mary Louisa Moore.[2] He died at St. Stephen on 4 July 1943 and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[3]

As a boy he accompanied his father to the Rural Cemetery to repair the iron fence. As a young man he lived and worked in a variety of locales, including Wheeling, West Virginia, and Toledo, Ohio. He returned from his travels and worked at the cotton mill in Milltown, New Brunswick. Then he became the owner and operator of a garage on Water Street in St. Stephen. The garage, which may have had its origin as the blacksmith shop of Joseph Strange, was near the bridge and the later site of the Border Garage. Livingstone sold his garage and returned to the mill, where he is thought to have installed turbines. In 1939 he acquired an appointment as a justice of the peace for Charlotte County. During World War II he spent the winter of 1943 as a mechanic at Saint John Dry Dock and Shipbuilding. He died suddenly during a return trip to St. Stephen with Sarah to reopen their house.[4]

Sarah worked at home as a milliner between 1896 and 1901.[5] In 1903 she graduated from Lawrence General Hospital in Massachusetts with a diploma in nursing. As a registered nurse she worked at the new Chipman Hospital in St. Stephen and then did private duty nursing in the St. Stephen area. Later she was the superintendent of the Claremont General Hospital in New Hampshire. After marrying she and Livingstone briefly resided at Lubec, Washington County, Maine.[6] On the death of her father she took up residence in his house on Water Street (now Milltown Avenue) in St. Stephen. After 1947 she resided with her daughter Frances in Toronto.

Children of Sarah Catherine Irvin and John Livingstone Strange:

39 i. HARRIETT LOUISA[4] STRANGE was born at Lubec on 2 August 1909.

40 ii. FRANCES ELIZABETH[4] STRANGE was born at St. Stephen on 8 April 1918.

18. MARY ELLEN[3] ROY (Mary Ann[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[3] was born at Milltown, St. Stephen Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick 10 June 1860.[4] She died at Calais, Washington County, Maine, on 17 August 1938.[5] She was buried in the Calais Cemetery by the Irvine Funeral Home.[6]

She married HASKELL LINCOLN STANHOPE, at Milltown on 5 July 1889.[7] Haskell was born in Canada about 1863, son of George W. Stanhope and Lydia A. Gerhard.[8] He died after the 1920 census.[9] Harry, as he was known, was a stonecutter.[10]

Ellen and Haskell removed to Woodstock, Carleton County, New Brunswick, shortly after marrying and were enumerated there in the 1891 census.[11] By September 1891, when their son Roy was born, they had removed back to Calais. After 1901, when the city directory listed them on Chandler Street at Milltown, Maine, Haskell may have been living apart from Ellen. In a 1909 deed Ellen's name appears without his.[12] In the 1920 census he appears as head of household with his children at 160 Union

In the 1920s they lived for a time in Saint John, New Brunswick, before returning to Calais.[2] Addy was a member of St. Anne's Church.[3]

He married (2) MARY ANNE MEYERS at Calais on 11 October 1932.[4] Mary was born at Norton, Kings County, New Brunswick, on 15 July 1892, daughter of Ernest Meyers and Mary Molyneaux. She died at Calais on 17 May 1960[5] and was buried at St. Stephen on 19 May in the Rural Cemetery.[6] In 1933 Mary purchased a house lot at the corner of Washington and Barker Streets in Calais.[7]

George was baptized 10 June 1891 at the United Church in Milltown.[8] At the time he first married his occupation was that of mill man. In April 1927 George purchased a half share in the undertaking business of Thomas B. MacDonald at Calais.[9] The business advertised funeral, floral, and ambulance services.[10] In December 1927 he passed his board examination and became a licensed funeral director in the state of Maine.[11] George resided for many years in Calais at 62 Washington Street (see figure 6, site 7).[12]

March 1892. He died at Winthrop, Kennebec County, Maine, on 27 July 1975.[1] He was buried at Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts, on 29 July in the Highland Cemetery.[2]

He married JENNETTE ELIZABETH MAYES at Ipswich on 25 September 1916.[3] Jennette was born at Ipswich on 17 September 1890, daughter of William Mayes and Margaret Elizabeth McLellan.[4] She died at Framingham, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on 28 September 1972[5] and was buried at Ipswich on 30 September in the Highland Cemetery. Before she married Jen was a dry goods saleswoman in Ipswich.[6] She owned a cottage in Ipswich on Little Neck at the mouth of the Ipswich River. The cottage, which had been her father's, was later used for vacations by her grown children.[7]

When Vernard was 13, his parents moved to Ipswich. He left regular high school to complete his studies and graduate from the Salem (Massachusetts) Commercial School. At the same time, he had begun working as an express man for American Express. While with American Express he took classes at Bentley College. Contacts arising in the course of employment with American Express led to a job as a teller at the Farmers and Mechanics Savings Bank in Framingham. In 1914 he became a Vernard Irvine and Jennette Mayes were married 24 Sep according to the civil record of marriage. The date given by interview with Vernard and Jennette is 25 Sep. For the marriage certificate, Jennette gave her age as 24; it was actually 26. The ceremony was performed by Robert B Parker, minister. Margaret Strickland states that the correct date is 25 Sep. She has in her possession two worksheets, signed by witnesses to the marriage, and used by the minister to file a record with the town clerk. The first worksheet listed the date as 24 Sep. Jennette and Vernard discovered the error on their honeymoon train trip to Portland, Maine. A second worksheet was completed in November with the correct date, and with different witness signatures. Apparently no amendment was ever made to the official record.

The neck is owned by the Feofees of the Reservation, otherwise known as the Ipswich School Board. The cottages are owned by their occupants, but the land is leased, under an old English land holding system that has been in continuous use for Little Neck since the 1600s.

U.S. citizen. Vernard remained at the bank, later renamed the Framingham Savings Bank, and retired as vice president and treasurer in 1969. He was a long-time resident of Framingham and was an avid bowler.[1] After Jennette's death he resided at Winthrop, Maine, first with his daughter Margaret and then at the Nicholson rest home where he died.

25. LLOYD ELTON[4] IRVINE (Robert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin) was born at Milltown, Charlotte County, New Brunswick on 28 December 1896.[2] He died at Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts, on 29 July 1976[3] and was buried there on 31 July in the Highland Cemetery.

He married ELIZABETH BRUCE[4] at Ipswich on 19 September 1927. Elizabeth was born at Ipswich on 1 September 1905, daughter of Robert J. Bruce and Ines Elizabeth Myrtle Reeve. She died at Beverly, Essex County, Massachusetts, on 28 December 1997 and was buried at Ipswich in the Highland Cemetery. Before marriage she had been employed as a housekeeper in Framingham, Massachusetts. Years later, after marrying and settling back in Ipswich, she was a cook at the Sylvania plant and later at Grant's seafood restaurant. Elizabeth married secondly George Rogers of Brentwood, New Hampshire, who predeceased her.[5]

Lloyd moved to Massachusetts with his parents in 1905. Before marriage he worked in 1920 as a movie projectionist and in 1921 as an engineer.[6] In the late 1930s he was a chauffeur for the D. A. Grady Company.[7] Later, in

ROBERT ARTHUR[4] IRVINE (William Gilbert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin) was born at Milltown, Charlotte County, New Brunswick on 15 May 1880, and baptized there on 1 November 1880 at the Methodist Church.[3] He died at Westerly, Washington County, Rhode Island, on 16 June 1952 and was buried there on 19 June in the River Bend Cemetery.[4]

He married MARIE STANTON PEABODY at Pawcatuck, Stonington, New London County, Connecticut, on 19 February 1908.[5] Marie[6] was born at Narragansett, Washington County, Rhode Island, about 1888, daughter of Benjamin A. Peabody and Elizabeth Caswell.[7] She died at Westerly on July 1952 and was buried in the River Bend Cemetery.[8]

Under the naturalization laws then in effect, Marie had become a citizen of Canada when she married Arthur. She and Arthur became naturalized citizens of the United States in Fitchburg, Massachusetts, on 28 September 1925.[9] Inspired by her husband, she was a member of the Women's

This date was likely provided to the enumerator by his new stepmother. We accept the baptismal record as being accurate. It is consistent with the age of 28 given by Arthur at the time of his marriage in 1908. The name appears as Robert Arthur on the baptismal record and on the birth record of Robert Arthur Jr. However, on his marriage license, Arthur signed his name as Arthur R Irvine.

Christian Temperance Union in Westerly, and hosted meetings in her home.[1] She died years after a stroke that left her able to communicate only by blinking. After her stroke her daughter Elizabeth cared for her at home. Later she entered a nursing home at Watch Hill, Rhode Island.[2]

After the death of their mother, Arthur and his brother John were raised by their Uncle Frederick and Aunt Emma Irvine until their father remarried.[3] Arthur began his career in the textile industry by carrying filling to the weavers at the St. Croix cotton mill at Milltown, New Brunswick.[4] He left New Brunswick for New England about 1901.[5]

Following his arrival in Massachusetts he became a manufacturing executive with Atlantic (textile) Mills of Lawrence, Massachusetts. Within a few years he was the overseer of the Lorraine textile mill at Westerly, Rhode Island.[6] In 1918 he removed to Clinton, Massachusetts, to become the overseer of weaving at Lancaster Mills. In 1923 the several overseers organized themselves into a council and elected Arthur president. Lancaster Mills later promoted Arthur to superintendent. He served in this position until 1929 at which time he removed to Connecticut to further his career.[7]

For the next seven years he was the president and assistant treasurer of the Aldrich Brothers textile mill at Moosup in the town of Plainfield, Connecticut. At Moosup Arthur was also the president of the Moosup Trust Company, a mill-owned bank, having been elected a director in 1930. In 1935, in partnership with Robert B. Hough, he bought the Talbot Company from Aldrich Bros. Arthur used Talbot as a vehicle to liquidate the Aldrich mill and sell its equipment to overseas businesses. Subsequently Arthur and others incorporated Steel Fabricators to manufacture the Prairie Window Ventilator, a home and office window ventilating device on the market since 1917. The venture used a portion of the Talbot property (the former Aldrich mill) at Moosup. After optimistic press announcements of the new company in 1938, the venture failed. The mill complex is today the site of Kamman Aerospace, a manufacturer of helicopter parts.[1]

From 1945 until his death Arthur was the evening superintendent of the Bradford Dyeing Association at Bradford, Rhode Island.[2]

Of his many residences over the years, the ones most fondly remembered by his grandchildren are the houses at Moosup, and at Narragansett where he removed from Moosup in 1936. In Narragansett he was a member of the Democratic town committee. Around 1947 he was named executive secretary of the farm labor supply committee of the (Rhode Island) State Council of Defense.[3] Arthur's portrait is figure 9.

[1] Fibre and Fabric article; and Arthur Nicol, Jr, interview. Arthur Irvine maintained a close relationship with the state police of Connecticut and Rhode Island throughout his professional life. At one time, according to his grandson Arthur Nicol, Jr, Arthur told striking mill workers that they would never work in the mill again, and proceeded to throw the key to the mill in the river. That evening, angry strikers set fire to the trees in Arthur's front yard, and broke the windows at the front of the house. For a while thereafter, Arthur's daughter Elizabeth enjoyed a state police escort to her teaching job. Because some 80 residences, the bank, and the village store were all owned by the mill, the shutdown of the mill crippled the village.

[2] Roberta Cekala, interview.

[3] IrvineSB. Arthur's first known residence in the United States was in Pawcatuck, Connecticut, across the river from Westerly, RI. In Pawcatuck, Arthur and Mary lived at 141 West Broad Street in 1908, 155 West Broad Street in 1909, and 141 Washington Street in 1910. In Clinton, Mass, they lived at 80 Chestnut Street and later at 115 Prescott Street. The house at Moosup is remembered by Carol (Irvine) Adams and her brother Robert Mayes Irvine, who visited as children, as a mansion with a three-car garage, and a dining-room floor button used to summon the maid. Arthur Nicol, Jr states that the garage housed three Packards. The Moosup house was mill property. It still stands, on Rt 14 between the village and Interstate 395. From Moosup, Arthur and Mary removed to Narragansett Pier, RI, where they occupied Linden Hall, at Central Street and Fifth Avenue. Linden Hall was originally built by Mary's grandfather James D Caswell in 1883 and sold to W Herbert Caswell the same year. Arthur's grandson Arthur Nicol, Jr, recalls the house as having 23 rooms, and a 5-car heated garage that Arthur Irvine would empty to provide room for his grandchildren to roller skate. The grounds had a large goldfish pond, and in the house was Arthur's gun collection. From Narragansett, they removed to Bradford, RI.

27. KENNETH EARL[4] IRVINE (William Gilbert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[1] was born at Milltown, Charlotte County, New Brunswick on 19 September 1899 and was baptized on 3 June 1900 at the Milltown Methodist Church.[2] He died at St. Stephen, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 23 February 1993[3] and was buried there on 26 February in the Rural Cemetery.[4]

He married THELMA ISOBEL CLARK at Milltown on 2 August 1927.[5] Thelma[6] was born at Milltown on 8 October 1900, daughter of John Leonard Clark and Agnes Thompson. She died at Milltown on 25 March 1980 and was buried on 28 March in the Rural Cemetery.[7] She was an adherent to the Milltown United Church; a member of the Milltown United Church Women, the Red Cross Society, and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Charlotte County Hospital; and served as a volunteer canvasser for many organizations.

Kenneth quit school at age 16 when his father died, took correspondence courses, and passed the high school equivalency test. He enlisted in 1918 and served in the Canadian Army for a few months until World War I ended. He worked for a time in the local cotton mill, and then was a teller for the Bank of Nova Scotia, an office manager for the St. Croix Soap factory (later Lever Brothers), a self-employed sales agent for the Manufacturer's Life Insurance Company, and the administrator of the Chipman Memorial Hospital and its successor, the Charlotte County Hospital, until his retirement in 1966. Over the years he served on the boards of the hospital, the Rural Cemetery, the Red Cross and the Milltown School Board. At the United Church, he was a member of the Session Board of Stewards, and was the superintendent of the Sunday school. In 1989 he endowed a window at the church in memory of the Irvine family. Kenneth was noted for his quick wit. He resided in Milltown at 8 Church Street (see figure 6, site 1).[8]

Henry entered the United States about 1885. He was a sash maker in a lumber mill at 760 Dutton Street, Lowell, and resided nearby on Carleton Avenue in Chelmsford, Massachusetts.[1] He became a cabinetmaker, and later owned a chicken and egg business.[2]

Children of Henry A. Stokham and Margaret Heaney:

i. EVA MAE[5] STOKHAM[3] was born in Massachusetts about 1902. She married EDDIE CLEGG.

ii. BURTON[5] STOKHAM[4] was born in Canada on 15 February 1907 and died in May 1976. He married MARY (—),[5] who was born on 9 November 1905 and died in June 1977. They resided at Chelmsford.

34. ERNEST FRANCIS[4] STOKHAM (Eliza[3] Irvin, Henry[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[6] was born at Lowell, Middlesex County, Massachusetts on 16 December 1895.[7] He died at Wappingers Falls, Dutchess County, New York, on 18 April 1928.[8] He was buried at Lowell in the West Lawn Cemetery.

He married ALICE FLORENCE MANN at Lowell on 25 March 1919.[9] Alice was born at Claremont, Sullivan County, New Hampshire, about 1896, daughter of Henry Elmer Mann and Annie Mae Deane. She died at Lowell after 1938[10] and was buried in the West Lawn Cemetery.

Ernest attended Lowell Technical School and became the chief chemist at the Lowell Bleachery. With his brother Burton he owned the Fallkill Aniline and Chemical Company at Wappingers Falls. Ernest created the formula for Chelmsford Golden Ginger Ale, a product later owned by the Canada Dry company.[11]

As a widow, Alice continued to reside in Lowell, at 11 Autumn Street in 1929 and 1930, 62 London Street from 1931 through 1933, at 387 Lincoln from 1934

Children of Ernest Francis Stokham and Alice Florence Mann, all born at Lowell:

71 i. ERNEST FRANCIS[5] STOKHAM was born on 27 December 1919.

72 ii. FRANCIS IRVIN[5] STOKHAM was born on 22 December 1921.

iii. MURIEL ELEANOR[5] STOKHAM was born on 29 February 1924. She married _____ THOMSON.

iv. EDWARD FRANKLIN[5] STOKHAM was born on 26 April 1926.

35. JANE ELIZABETH[4] CARMICHAEL (Annie Joan[3] Irvin, Henry[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[1] was born in New Brunswick on 29 January 1891.[2] She died at St. Stephen, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 8 November 1979 and was buried there on 10 November in the Rural Cemetery.[3]

She married SILAS PENNA MOULTON on 29 January 1913.[4] Silas was born in June 1881. He died at Milltown, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 25 December 1956, and was buried on 28 December in the Rural Cemetery.[5] He grew up in St. Stephen. In his teenage years he joined his brothers at a dairy farm in Peabody, Massachusetts, where he drove the horse-drawn delivery wagon. At one stop the horse started up unexpectedly, catching and wounding his leg. Thereafter he walked with an artificial limb. When he was 22 years old he removed back to St. Stephen where he worked in a sawmill until his retirement. In the course of his sawyer duties he lost a finger.[6] Jane and Silas resided on Milltown Boulevard in St. Stephen in what had been the town hall. After Silas died Jane resided with her daughter Eva at 18 Maple Street.[7]

Children of Jane Elizabeth Carmichael and Silas Penna Moulton, all born at St. Stephen:

73 i. ANNIE LOUISE[5] MOULTON was born on 9 April 1914.

74 ii. EVA MARY JANE[5] MOULTON was born on 3 March 1916.

36. HENRY IRVING[4] GREARSON (Margaret Florence[3] Irvin, Henry[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[1] was born on 8 April 1890.[2] He died on 25 February 1972 and was buried at Moore's Mills, St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, in the Moore's Mills Cemetery.

He married HAZEL DOROTHY WHITE on 29 June say 1929. Hazel was born on 14 February 1904, daughter of Arthur and Susan White. She died on 16 January 1953 and was buried in the Moore's Mills Cemetery.

Henry was raised by his Aunt Annie and Uncle William Carmichael. In World War I he joined the Army and served with the 16th Canadian Scottish Battalion in France. In 1916 his battalion was in the three-month Battle of Ypres, where he was wounded. After being treated at hospitals in England, Scotland, and Canada, he was finally discharged in September 1918. He returned to civilian life as a farmer at Moore's Mills.[3]

Children of Henry Irving Grearson and Hazel Dorothy White, all born at Moore's Mills:

buried at Bourne, Barnstable County, Massachusetts, in the National Cemetery. He attended New Bedford public schools through the 8th grade. During World War II he served in the U.S. Army as a tank commander with the rank of sergeant in the 7th Armored Division, in which capacity he participated in campaigns in France, the Rhineland, Ardennes, and central Europe, including the Battle of the Bulge. After returning to New Bedford he drove a delivery truck for the Railway Express Company. Beginning in 1959 he was a police officer in Freetown, starting as a volunteer and part-time officer and becoming a full-time officer in 1973. He completed the Massachusetts Police Academy course in 1974, was promoted to sergeant in 1975, and retired from the force in 1980.[1]

Margaret did part-time clerical and retail work for the stationery department of the New Bedford News Company while in high school. After her graduation from New Bedford High School in 1931 she continued working in the stationery department until her daughter was born. From 1959 to 1975 she was the secretary to the guidance counselor at Apponequet Regional High School at Lakeville, Massachusetts. For many years she was the pianist for the Presbyterian Sunday School. In her retirement she was a docent and volunteer archivist at the New Bedford Whaling Museum from 1976 to 1996. For 12 years she was the registrar of voters at East Freetown, Massachusetts, where she currently resides.

Child of Margaret Louisa Irvin and James Dewey Brightman, Jr.:

i. JANE MARGARET[5] BRIGHTMAN[2] was born at New Bedford on 12 February 1947.

[1] James enlisted on 10 Feb 1942 in Boston. Within the 7th Armored Division he served in the 87th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron, where he was promoted to sergeant. He sailed from New York to Scotland on the Queen Mary in June, 1944, and landed in France in August, 1944. His 7th Division was detached from General Patton's army around the time of the Battle of Metz. James was removed to a hospital in England for a non-combat injury. While he was there, the 7th Division defended and finally ceded St Vith, Belgium against a German spearhead. James returned to the front in Belgium through the "repple-depple" system in time to participate in the Battle of the Bulge, which included, as a matter of honor, the retaking of what was left of St Vith on 23 January 1945. James crossed the Rhine near Remagen and later proceeded to the Ruhr pocket, where 37,000 German troops surrendered to his unit as prisoners of war. Among those surrendering were some of the Panzer generals who had led troops against the 7th at St Vith. On V-E day (Victory in Europe) the 7th was on the Baltic Sea near Lübeck, where James and others drove their tanks on the beach. After discharging some occupation duties, James returned to New York on the liberty ship William's Victory in October 1945. He was discharged from service at Fort Devens, Mass, on 1 November, 1945.

[2] Jane Brightman, notes.

She married ROBERT CARTWRIGHT DUNNE, JR. at East Freetown, Freetown, Bristol County, Massachusetts, on 28 August 1971. Robert was born at Brooklyn, Kings County, New York, on 25 February 1936, son of Robert Cartwright Dunne and Marie Antoinette Pickup. After graduating from Lawrenceville (High) School he went on to Cornell University where he received a B.A. in 1954. In 1964 he earned an M.B.A. from New York University. He is a securities analyst for Wasserstein Perella Securities and resides at Staten Island, New York. Robert and Jane were divorced in September 1976.

Jane graduated from Apponequet Regional High School in 1965 and then furthered her education in New York City, where she received an A.B. in English from Barnard College in 1969 and an M.A. in English and comparative literature from Columbia University in 1970. Since then she has been a writer, editor, and analyst at financial houses in New York, including Paine Webber, First Boston, Standard & Poor's and F. Eberstadt. Currently she writes and edits in the equity research department of Merrill Lynch, where she is on the staff of Global Research Highlights, a weekly publication for retail brokers. Jane was nearing the World Trade Center on 11 September 2001 when the twin towers were attacked by hijacked airplanes.[1] She resides in Manhattan.

[1] Jane Brightman, letter to VI Adams, dated 16 Sep 2001:

Last Tuesday I got stuck in the subway--a much longer delay than usual, but no clear explanation -- then got kicked off two stops short of my destination (the World Trade Center). I zigzagged over toward the Hudson R, trying to get to my office in the World Financial Center. When I first got a clear view of WTC1 (north tower), the top 10 floors or so were on fire. As tragic as I knew that probably was, I didn't think it would affect the buildings in the WFC. I was at Warren St & North End Ave, about 5 blocks north, walking along with one eye on the fire. Just then, WTC appeared to blow up--the top 20 or 30 floors just turned into a smoke cloud. As I stood there in disbelief, gaping, a cop ran past me yelling, "RUN!" I turned & saw that he was heading for one of the doors into Stuyvesant HS. I followed, but the cop was a lot faster than I am, & the cloud of ashes, soot, dust, & debris caught up with me. Everything went gray, then black, then blacker than black (that's when tail lights on cars disappeared). (If that's what firemen encounter in burning buildings, they don't get paid enough--it was very scary--as though someone had put a mask over my face.) Fortunately it cleared to dark gray again, & I was able to feel my way along the trunk of a car & the side of an ambulance (nobody home) toward the school entrance, which I knew was close. I breathed in some nasty stuff, but only for a few minutes. Then I made it inside, where the NYPD welcomed me in & the Secret Service took care of me--at this point I realized something serious was happening--until the school was evacuated. The rest was pretty uneventful. I walked a long way, talked to some nice people, watched TV in a Dept of Sanitation garage, & eventually caught a cab at Ninth Ave & 42nd St Although I was able to

38. EDWARD JEREMIAH[4] IRVIN (Jeremiah[3] Irvin, Edward[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[1] was born at New Bedford, Bristol County, Massachusetts on 4 March 1917. He died at South Dartmouth, Dartmouth, Bristol County, Massachusetts, on 6 August 1988 and was buried on 9 August in the South Dartmouth Cemetery.

He married MARJORIE ALETHA WALSH at New Bedford on 1 April 1942. Marjorie was born at New Bedford on 20 April 1919, daughter of James William Walsh and Aletha Underwood Tripp. Through her mother Marjorie is descended from whaling captains of Westport, Massachusetts. After Marjorie's graduation from New Bedford High School in 1938 she trained at a secretarial school, took the civil service examination, and began working for the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security. She eventually retired from the division as the assistant manager for personnel at the Fall River office.

Edward graduated from New Bedford High School in 1936 and in 1942 was awarded a two-year diploma by the New Bedford Textile School, a progenitor of the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth. Shortly after marrying he joined the U.S. Army Air Corps to serve in World War II and was posted to England as an armourer for the 8th Air Force, 374th fighter squadron, 92nd bomber group. His service took him to Normandy, the Ardennes, the Rhineland, Africa and the Middle East. After the war he worked as a mold designer and draftsman for the Acushnet Rubber Company. He resided at New Bedford until 1959 when he removed to South Dartmouth and occupied a new house that he and Marjorie built.[2] wash off my arms & face & shake out my clothes at Stuyvesant, I still arrived home with pulverized concrete on my skin & hair, & everything I was carrying or wearing (dressing down is a blessing--I didn't wreck a designer creation or a dress-for-success suit, & I was already wearing shoes in which I could walk miles).

I've been glued to the TV coverage since then. Don't know yet when Merrill will be able to go back downtown (9,000 employees at several locations, incl buildings in the WFC). It looks as though I may be working from home for a while, when the ML system is set up for it. I'd rather go to an office--preferably my own office--but that's not going to happen anytime soon.

Regards, Jane

Eddie's LST joined other ships at Halifax to form a convoy, but mechanical problems occurred again, and the LST crossed the Atlantic to England unescorted (the LST, or Landing Ship Tank, was a spartan vessels designed not for long voyages, but for transporting troops to beaches). Edward and Marjorie took four years to build their house at South Dartmouth, doing all the carpentry themselves in the evening, after work, from plans they purchased from a Boston architect. Edward was an elder, trustee, and choir member of the New Bedford Presbyterian Church and was a scoutmaster. Marjorie and Edward were members of the Westport Historical Society and the Paskamansett Bird Club.

Concerning Vinie's death the Calais Advertiser states,

> Sylvanus (sic) Haney, riding on the lower part of Main Street, met with a fatal accident Sunday evening (14 Nov). Mr. Haney was feeding his horse when he slipped, falling under the animal. The horse, affrighted, reared, and in coming down planted both forefeet on the body of the prostrate man. He was taken to the Chipman Hospital, where he passed away Tuesday morning.

The St. Croix Courier offers a somewhat different version:

> A fatal accident of an unusual nature occurred in Calais Saturday evening (13 Nov). Sylvanus (sic) Haney was in the loft of his barn, feeding his horse, when he slipped and fell through an opening to the stall of the horse, landing right in front of the animal. The horse was startled and reared, coming down with both fore feet on the man's stomach. Mr. Haney felt no serious pain at the time and retired to sleep but awoke in the morning with intense pain. He was taken to Chipman Memorial Hospital where it was found that his intestines had been perforated, death following within a few hours.[5]

She married EDWARD THURSTON STAPLES at Calais on 3 July 1947. Edward was born at Wales, Androscoggin County, Maine, on 5 December 1924, son of Walter Thurston Staples and Mary Sebel Alexander. From 1941 to 1946 Edward served as a non-commissioned officer in the U.S. Army Air Corps. After training in the states he piloted B25 bombers in World War II. While stationed at the Clark air base in the Philippines he met General McArthur. Following his military service Edward learned locksmithing while employed for three years by the American Hardware Company in New York City. He then worked in Schenectady, New York, for seven years and went on to settle in New Hampshire as a self-employed locksmith.

Shirley attended the nursing school at the Central Maine General Hospital in Lewiston, Maine, and worked as a registered nurse until her retirement. She resides at Dover, New Hampshire.

Children of Shirley Jean Irvine and Edward Thurston Staples:

119 i. SUSAN ANN[6] STAPLES was born at Lewiston on 9 June 1949.

58. ROBERT MAYES[5] IRVINE (Vernard Johnson[4] Irvine, Robert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[2] was born at Framingham, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on 19 September 1917.

He married VIRGIE PFEIFFER at Framingham on 11 April 1942. Virgie was born at Framingham on 16 April 1920 daughter of Frederick William Pfeiffer and Marjorie Pearl Virgie. She died at Damariscotta, Lincoln County, Maine, on 22 October 1995 and was buried at Augusta, Kennebec County, Maine, in the Veterans Cemetery. Virgie was a secretary at the Cushing Hospital in Framingham when Bob was admitted for rehabilitation after the war. In Vermont and Maine Robert's schools employed her as his personal secretary.

Robert, known as Bob, graduated in 1941 from the University of Maine with a B.S. in forestry and an ROTC commission as a 2nd lieutenant in the U.S. Army. He saw active duty from May 1942 to September 1945 in the European theater of World War II with the U.S. Army's 1st Division. After embarking from England he was in the North African invasion force that came ashore at Oran. He recalls that while in foxholes his men disabled passing German tanks by tossing grenades up into their vulnerable undercarriages. Subsequently he was in the force that came ashore at Gela to take Sicily. After the Sicilian engagement he returned to England for seven months to prepare for the invasion of Normandy. At Normandy, where he was in the first wave ashore, his leg was wounded by a German machine gun bullet. He pressed on until the wound became infected. Later, within Germany, he was struck by projectiles from an antipersonnel mine inadvertently kicked by a fellow U.S. soldier. He awoke in a medical facility in Liège, Belgium, and was transported to a military hospital in England. There he chanced to meet his brother William. From England he was sent back to the U.S. where he entered the Cushing Hospital in Framingham for rehabilitation. He left the service with four purple hearts, a plate in his head, and an assortment of embedded German shrapnel.

After the war Bob and Virgie operated a general store at Wardsboro, Vermont, for a year and Bob drove a school bus. He became an elementary school teacher, first at Wardsboro, then at Townsend, Vermont, following which he was the principal of the Bellows Falls, Vermont, elementary school for 12 years. In 1954 after several years of weekend commuting, Robert earned an M.S. degree in elementary school administration from Boston University. In 1963 he was elected president of the Vermont Elementary Principal's Association. The following year he was the president of the Vermont Teacher's Association. In 1965 Bob and Virgie removed to Linekin Neck in Boothbay, Maine. In Maine, Bob was the principal of the Boothbay elementary school for three years, and of the Southport elementary school from 1968 until his retirement in 1980. At Linekin Neck Bob had a pier, a boat, and a small string of lobster traps. In 1986 Bob and Virgie removed to Newcastle, Maine.[1]

Child of Robert Mayes Irvine and Virgie Pfeiffer:

121 i. ROBERT WILLIAM[6] IRVINE was born at Brattleboro, Vermont, on 14 November 1946.

59. WILLIAM LLOYD[5] IRVINE (Vernard Johnson[4] Irvine, Robert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[2] was born at Framingham, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on 11 December 1920. He died at Portland, Cumberland County, Maine, on 21 July 2002. His remains were cremated and interred at the National Cemetery in Augusta, Maine.

He married MARTHA FRANCES ALLEN at Lewiston, Androscoggin County, Maine, on 15 January 1944. Martha was born at Freeport, Cumberland County, Maine, on 23 December 1922, daughter of Charles Edward Allen and Eleanor Margaret True. In December 1943 she graduated from the University of Maine with a B.S. in home economics. Martha resides at Portland.

World War II he served in the U.S. Army from September 1942 to December 1945 as a technical sergeant in a unit that established local governmental functions in European areas secured by the allies.

After the war William returned to the University of Maine and earned a Master of Education degree in 1947. After serving as principal, teacher, and coach for Isleboro (Maine) High School, he pursued further graduate studies at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, where he graduated in 1952 with a Ph.D. in educational administration.

William had a varied and distinguished career as an educational administrator. After serving as the assistant superintendent of schools for Ithaca he was the rural superintendent of schools for the Willimantic, Connecticut, area. Subsequently he became an associate professor of education at the University of Vermont and then the first dean of the University of Maine at Portland, following which he was the coordinator of the inter-university program at Cornell University. The inter-university program established liaisons with schools in third-world countries. Then, with his family settled in Maryland, he served as a regional education officer for the U.S. State Department between 1964 and 1966. In that capacity his duties took him on several tours of Africa where he oversaw schools for dependents of State Department employees. On returning to the U.S. he served as president of Vermont College for six years, and then as interim president of Wheelock College at Brookline, Massachusetts. He retired from the education field in 1974 and removed to Falmouth, Maine, to become an associate for the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company and the Presbyterian Ministers Fund. He retired from that field in 1987. For 25 years he was a trustee of Fisher College.

Children of William Lloyd Irvine and Martha Frances Allen:

i. ELIZABETH ALLEN[6] IRVINE[1] was born at Bangor, Penobscot County, Maine, on 12 September 1946.

She married LOREN A. KELLER at Buffalo, Erie County, New York, on 27 May 1972.[2] He was born on 15 December 1930. They were divorced at Buffalo in July 1979.[3]

Elizabeth received a B.A. in English from St. Lawrence University in 1968. In 1979 she graduated from the State University of New York at Buffalo with a Master of Social

60. CAROL JENNETTE[5] IRVINE (Vernard Johnson[4] Irvine, Robert[3] Irvine, John[2] Irvin, Thomas[1] Irvin)[2] was born at Framingham, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on 17 November 1922.

She married WILLIAM JOHN ADAMS at Framingham on 29 June 1947. William[3] was born at Framingham on 15 March 1922, son of William Otto Adams and Minnie Amelia Moran. After graduating from Framingham High School in 1940, Bill followed his father's trade as a machinist at the Dennison Manufacturing Company in Framingham.[4]

After the declaration of war he joined the U.S. Navy in September 1942 and served as a machinist's mate with the rank of petty officer 1st class aboard the USS Briareus, a repair ship in the Pacific Theatre and a part of Admiral Nimitz's 7th Fleet. When the U.S. exploded atomic bombs over Japan on 6 and 9 August 1945 the Briareus was stationed at Buckner Bay in Okinawa, 500 miles from Nagasaki. William was discharged from the Navy in 1946.[5]

[4] As a Boy Scout, Bill sold Betty Bright scouring pads. One of his customers was Jennette Irvine. Bill's first job at the Dennison after high school was that of errand boy at the plant. He then worked a drill press in the machine shop, where his shift sometimes overlapped that of his father. He recalls that his father was highly respected as a machinist. Bill took a night course in lathe operation at the Wentworth Institute in Boston.

He was sworn into the US Navy on 7 Sep 1942 at the Boston Naval Receiving Station. From there, he proceeded to Coddington Point at Newport, RI, where he received three weeks of basic training before attending machinist mate school at the Great Lakes training station near Chicago. He completed training about Apr 1943 and was made a petty officer, 2nd class. He was transferred to Norfolk, Virginia, to await orders to serve on the USS Dizo with a SeaBee engineering and construction unit headed for Italy. Instead, he was ordered to the Brooklyn, New York, receiving station to await the conversion of the steam-powered Briareus from banana boat to naval repair ship. Once commissioned, the USS Briareus steamed to Norfolk for supplies. While there Bill was detailed to maintenance duty on the USS Alcor while it was docked. The Briareus, with Bill on board, left harbor and went through the Panama Canal and on to Pearl Harbor. Bill was assigned to the Briareus as a machinist's mate, and worked in the machinists' mate shop (other machinists' mates were assigned to the engine room). After three weeks in Hawaii, Bill's ship proceeded toward New Zealand. En route, it crossed the equator. Crewmen who had never crosses the equator, termed "pollywogs," were subjected to ritual hazing. Bill recalls having his head rubbed on the greased belly of an obese petty officer before being thrown in a garbage pit. Then, wet from the garbage pit, he was paddled as he crawled past a gauntlet. After the one-day refueling stop at New Zealand, the Briareus then steamed northwest to the New Hebrides Islands, where its crew began its work by overhauling damaged naval ships at New Caledonia Island, near the city of Noumea, due east of Australia. New Caledonia was the first of several island harbors where the Briareus crew performed its work. As the naval front moved northwestward the Briareus followed the front. In harbor, several damaged ships would be tied up alongside the Briareus, and a floating dry dock would be near by. While under way, the Briareus was usually escorted by two destroyers and took a zigzag route. After working at New Caledonia, the Briareus steamed to Manus Island in the Admiralty Islands group for an extended period of about six months. En route to Manus, it put in overnight along the New Guinea coast, where natives approached the ship and sold fruit to the crew. Bill bought bananas and became ill with dysentery. He was flown to a hospital ship for three weeks before rejoining his ship in the Admiralties. In the Admiralties the Briareus worked on heavy ships and saw many destroyers damaged by kamikaze attacks. At Manus, Bill was promoted to machinist's mate, 1st class (equivalent of petty officer 1st class), and happened to meet his brother Earl. Earl was a Navy signalman assigned to a merchant vessel as part of the armed crew. While his ship was at Manus, he learned of the proximity of the Briareus, and signaled his presence, ship-to-ship, to the signalman on the Briareus. Earl brought a damaged piston to Bill and returned with a new piston. From Manus, the Briareus went to the Caroline Islands, east of the Philippines and southwest of Guam. In the Carolines, it put in first at Ulithi, an island in the Yap Island group, and then at Peleliu in the Palau Island group. After about a month in the Carolines, Bill's ship went to Leyte Gulf in the Philippines some time after the Oct 1944 battle of Leyte Gulf. Leyte Gulf became a massing point for the imminent invasion of Japan, and was filled with ships. In the Philippines, the Briareus had a long stint servicing light craft, principally PT boats, minesweepers and landing craft. One day, five crewmen from the Briareus were dispatched to an ammunition ship elsewhere in Leyte Gulf. The ammo ship blew up with numerous casualties resulting. All five of the men from the Briareus were killed, representing the only wartime casualties to the Briareus crew. Men on ships nearby were killed by the concussion. From Leyte, Bill's ship was escorted to Okinawa. While there, Bill toured the island capitol of Naha, and observed that it had been obliterated by the US Naval bombardment. After the Japanese formally surrendered on 2 Sep 1945, Bill remained at Okinawa until November, and then returned to San Francisco aboard the USS Hope. The Hope was a hospital ship doubling as a troop transport. On that ship, for the first time in three years, he slept on a bunk with sheets. He and others played bridge in the operating

After his wartime service he briefly returned to the Dennison and then used a GI Bill of Rights scholarship to pursue a longstanding interest in forestry.[1] After two years of study he received a forest technician certificate from Arkansas A & M College at Monticello in August 1948. He continued his studies at the University of Maine where he graduated with a B.S. in Forestry in 1950.

That summer he was an instrument man on a Great Northern Paper Company survey crew working out of a log-driving camp on the Penobscot River 25 miles north of Millinocket, Maine. In November 1950 he began his career with the Forestry Service of the State of Maine as a dispatcher/draftsman in the fire control division at Augusta. In 1951 he became a service forester, in which capacity he advised small landowners on woodlot management. While residing at nearby Readfield, Maine, he was elected to public office twice. He served on the Readfield school board from 1962 to 1965 during which time he was chairman from 1963 to 1965, and he was a Readfield town assessor from 1965 to 1968. In 1968 he was transferred to the Old Town forestry office in eastern Maine. He retired as regional forester for that office in 1985.

Carol graduated from Framingham High School in 1940.[2] Following high school she attended the University of Maine where she was in the five-room to pass the time. He spent Christmas 1945 in San Francisco. From San Francisco he boarded a troop train to Boston, where he was honorably discharged at the naval receiving station on 6 Jan 1946 at the rank of machinist's mate (shop machinist) 1st class, and took a bus home to Framingham. During his stint in the service William crossed the equator twice, and the international dateline twice. He recalls that the islands all looked alike, and that the constant heat and humidity caused many sailors to develop a chronic rash. As did all World War II servicemen from Massachusetts, William received from Governor Tobin a testimonial of esteem and gratitude accompanied by a check for $100.

[1] After the war, Bill returned to the Dennison and worked for approximately six months while he developed the idea of pursuing a college degree. In preparation, he took night courses in mathematics at Framingham Teachers College. Bill's interest in forestry had been stimulated by watching the Framingham tree surgeon, who was the father of an eighth-grade friend.

[2] Carol and Bill first met as sixth graders at Miss Mackey's school of dance, held in Framingham Center. The dance lessons continued through the eighth grade. Usually, Bill chose Carol as his dance partner. While in ninth grade, they won a prize for their waltz at a Lincoln Junior High School dance. Carol, enamored of Bill, scratched the initials "BA" in the paint on her metal headboard when she was in sixth or seventh grade. Although they did not date in high school, and did not see each other after high school graduation until 1946, Carol kept Bill in mind throughout her college years. The two beds first used by Carol and her sister Margaret were passed down and later used by sons Bill Junior and Vern in Readfield. Vern, thinking that his brother had scratched his monogram into the furniture at some point in the past, once inquired why he could not recall his brother having ever been punished for defacing the bed. Carol responded with a confession of the misdemeanor described above.

year nursing program. Her third and fourth years were occupied by an internship at the Central Maine General Hospital nursing school at Lewiston, Maine, that she completed in 1944. She received her B.A. in nursing arts from the university in June 1945. Following graduation, she worked as a registered nurse at Cable Memorial Hospital in Ipswich, Massachusetts. In the fall she returned to Lewiston to be the night supervisor of nurses at the Central Maine General Hospital.[1]

After marrying she and Bill drove to Arkansas for his second year of college.[2] There the president of the A & M College, after discovering that she was a registered nurse, asked her to establish a college health clinic, which she did. In the summer of 1948 she worked at the hospital in Monticello. When Bill continued his schooling in Maine, Carol did private duty nursing in the Bangor area. After they settled in Readfield, Maine, in 1953, she occasionally worked at town immunization clinics conducted at the elementary school and later was a part-time clerk in the Readfield Post Office for several years.[3] After removing to Bangor, Maine, in 1968 she worked for the federally funded Penquis Community Action Program, retiring as director of the health services unit in 1985.[4]

Children of Carol Jennette Irvine and William John Adams, all born at Lewiston, Maine:

[1] In the fall of 1945 when Carol was the night supervisor at the Lewiston hospital, she wondered where Bill was and what he was doing. She wrote two or three letters to Bill, in care of his mother. He received them at Okinawa. After Bill returned to Framingham in January 1946, he telephoned Carol in Lewiston. She took the train to Boston at her first opportunity, which was in March. Bill met her at North Station. They did not recognize each other at first. Bill was rail-thin and balding, and Carol had long hair.

[2] After their wedding in 1947, Carol and Bill spent a leisurely summer at her mother's cottage at Little Neck, Ipswich, before Bill returned to Arkansas with Carol.

[3] In the summer of 1951 Carol was a technician in the entomology laboratory of the Maine Forest Service in Augusta where she raised flies for the spruce budworm eradication program.

[4] In Bangor her first two years with Penquis were in the family planning unit, following which she was the director of the health services unit. Penquis provided services to the poor in Penobscot and Piscataquis Counties. William and Carol resided in Augusta at 14A and then 14 Western Avenue until 1953 when they purchased a house in Readfield. They removed to 146 Howard Street in Bangor in 1968. In 1998 they moved to an apartment at 38 Wild Rose Drive across the river in Brewer, Maine. In 1998 they moved to a Bangor apartment.

iv. SCOTT DAVISON[6] ADAMS[1] was born on 17 December 1958. He died at Augusta, Kennebec County, Maine, on 14 March 1965,[2] and was buried at Readfield, Kennebec County, Maine, in the Kents Hill Cemetery. Scotty had Down Syndrome. He was a resident at the Crestview Home in Hallowell, Maine, in 1963 and attended the Kennebec Valley School in Augusta, Maine, from 1964 to 1965. He died of leukemia at the Augusta General Hospital. Across the road from the Kents Hill Cemetery is the Torsey Methodist Church where his parents were members and where a new Sunday School room was dedicated to Scott's memory in the late 1960s.

He married LAURA ADELLA SCOTT at Calais on 26 June 1931.[2] Laura was born at East Machias on 2 January 1911, daughter of Clair A. Scott and Maude E. Ackley.[3] She died at Waterville, Kennebec, Maine, on 31 October 1993[4] and was buried in the Jacksonville Cemetery. After graduating from Washington Academy she attended nursing school at the Calais Hospital until she married. Subsequently she was certified as a licensed practical nurse and worked at the Calais Hospital.

Raymond, known as Hap, graduated from Calais Academy in 1923. He was working as a shoe clerk at the time he married. After 18 years as a clerk and manager of the state liquor store in Calais he was elected sheriff of Washington County in 1952. He removed to Machias, the county seat, was re-elected several times, and retired from public office in 1972. That same year he removed to his summer home on Gardner's Lake at East Machias. Raymond was an active Mason and Shriner.

According to his granddaughter Catherine (Gault) Thom, Raymond and Laura lived at an apartment at the jail until his retirement. They maintained a camp at Gardner's Lake that was often visited by their grandchildren. The camp was at the end of a long road that was frequently impassable in the winter except by snowmobile. The garage for the property, near the main road, was converted to a winter house after Raymond retired. The lake house was eventually torn down and rebuilt by his son Richard around 1995.[5]

Chapter 7. Unconnected and Transient Irvins of Western Charlotte County, New Brunswick, and Eastern Washington County, Maine

St. Andrews Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick

The 1871 census for St. Andrews captured JAMES IRVINE, farmer, born in Ireland about 1825, his wife AGNES IRVINE, born about 1826, and their daughter MARGARET IRVINE, born about 1849.[1]

The marriage of JOHN IRVIN and MARY SMITH on 23 December 1833 is recorded by the All Saints Anglican Church of St. Andrews. Whether the marriage took place in St. Andrews or was performed by a circuit rider elsewhere is not stated.[2]

JOHN IRVIN, a merchant, born in Ireland about 1816, his sister JANE IRVIN, born in Ireland about 1822, and his nephew JOHN IRVIN, born in Ireland about 1837, resided at St. Andrews in 1851.[3] The elder John died on 7 April 1858 and was buried at St Andrews in the Greenock church yard.[4] The Courier reports that on 29 April 1890, that a John, youngest son of John and Margaret Irvin, died at Tower Hill, aged 23 years, 7 months, and 14 days.[5]

A MARGARET IRVIN married WILLIAM STOOP in Charlotte County in 1834.[6] The 1851 census reports that the Stoop household at St. Andrews comprised William, a tide waiter (sic), born in Ireland about 1798, and his children HUGH STOOP, born about 1832, JOHN STOOP, born about 1834, MARGARET STOOP, born about 1839, FRANCIS STOOP, born about 1842,

ANN STOOP, born about 1845, and ISABELLA STOOP, born about 1847. The enumeration sheet states, "wife in lunatic asylum."[1]

Widow MARGARET IRWINE, born in Ireland about 1781, appears in the 1851 census for St. Andrews as the mother-in-law in the household of GEORGE COLE, mariner, born in Ireland about 1801; his wife MARY COLE, born in Ireland about 1805; and his adopted daughter ANN DOUGLAS, born about 1843.[2] Margaret entered the province about 1831.

Another family found at St. Andrews in 1851 was that of WILLIAM IRWINE, shoemaker, born in Ireland about 1821 and entered the province in 1834; with his wife JANNET IRWINE, born in New Brunswick about 1822; daughter JANNET IRWINE, born in New Brunswick about 1845; son GEORGE IRWINE, born in New Brunswick about 1847; and mother-in-law JANNET STEVENSON, born in Scotland about 1786.[3]

St. David Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick

The St. Stephen Anglican Church records the baptism of JAYN IRVINE (sic), son of JOHN IRVINE and MARTHA IRVINE of St. David Parish, on 14 September 1817, and gives his birth date as 26 November 1816.[4]

Also baptized in the Anglican Church at St. Stephen, all on 30 December 1819, were HARRIET IRVIN, ELIZABETH IRVIN, WILLIAM IRVIN, and SUSANNAH IRVIN, children of ROBERT IRVIN and ANN IRVIN of St. David Parish.[5]

St. James Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick

ROBERT BURNS, son of GEORGE BURNS and ISABELLA IRVINE, was born on 2 May 1843 and baptized on 21 August 1843 in a church in St. James Parish.[6]

The 1871 census lists the St. James Parish household of WILLIAM IRVIN,[7] farmer, born in Ireland about 1835, his wife MARGARET IRVIN, born about 1841, and their children WILLIAM IRVIN, born in Nova Scotia about 1862, CHARLES E. IRVIN, born in Nova Scotia about 1866, [7] We speculate that William may have been the son of James Henry and Annabelle Irvine of St James, that Margaret and these children comprised his first family, and that he married Emily as a widower. The dates fit this hypothesis but we have found no affirmative evidence to link the families. Against the hypothesis is the absence of Margaret's children in Emily's household or in any other Irvin household of St. James in the 1881 census.

MATILDA IRVIN, born in New Brunswick about 1868, and ANN MAY IRVIN, born in New Brunswick about 1871.[1] Charles was buried in the St. Stephen Rural Cemetery.[2]

St. Patrick Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick

JOHN IRVIN and his wife JANE IRVIN are found in the 1851 and 1861 census enumerations of St. Patrick Parish.[3] John was born in Ireland about 1792, emigrated about 1828, farmed in St. Patrick Parish where he lived in a log house, and died before 1861. He was listed as infirm in the 1851 census. Jane Irvin was born in Ireland about 1803 and emigrated about 1828. In her old age, she resided with her son Edward. Their children, all born in New Brunswick, include MARGARET IRVIN, born about 1834, SUSAN IRVIN, born about 1836, RUTH IRVIN, born about 1838, ANN IRVIN, born on 30 September 1840 and baptized on 27 March 1842 at the St. Patrick Presbyterian Church,[4] EDWARD IRVIN, born on 15 May 1842;[5] and WILLIAM IRVIN, born about 1845. Edward, a farmer, married JANE JOHNSTONE on 24 Dec 1877 in Charlotte County.[6] Jane was born in New Brunswick on 23 Dec, between 1840 and 1846.

JOHN IRVIN, a farmer in St. Patrick Parish, was born in Ireland in December 1838. His wife MARY JANE IRVIN was born in New Brunswick in July 1838. Their family is captured in St. Patrick census records from 1871 to 1901, which list their children, all but the first born in New Brunswick, as MARY E. IRVIN, born on 7 July 1871; JOHN E. IRVIN, born on 15 Feb 1873; LAURA A. IRVIN, born about 1875, CHARLOTTE J. IRVIN, born on 17 March 1878; and THOMAS HENRY IRVIN, born on 30 Oct 1882.[7] In 1901 John's adult children Mary, John, Charlotte, and Thomas were still residing with him.

Also in St. Patrick Parish were THOMAS IRVIN, farmer, born in Ireland on 5 December about 1835; and his wife LUCY JANE IRVIN, born in Ireland about 1835. Their children, all born in New Brunswick, were EDWARD G. IRVIN, shoemaker, born about 1858; MARGARET IRVIN, born about 1859; SOFIAH IRVIN, born about 1860; JOHN IRVIN, born about 1861; WESLEY IRVIN, born about 1861; _____ IRVIN, born about 1862; HENRY IRVIN, born about 1866; and GILBERT IRVIN, born about 1869. In 1891 Thomas and Lucy Jane were sharing their house with sons Arthur M.[1] and Gilbert A.; and 16 year old Susan Diffen, a servant. By 1901 Lucy had presumably died, and the household comprised Thomas and Susan Diffen.[2]

St. Stephen, Charlotte County, New Brunswick

ALEXANDER IRVINE, born about 1860 at Fair Isle, Scotland, died on 28 April 1937 at Oak Bay, St. David Parish, New Brunswick, and was buried at the St. Stephen Rural Cemetery. He married ELEANOR SIMPSON, daughter of Joseph Simpson. He resided at Chatham, New Brunswick about 1885 and was employed by the New Brunswick Power Company. From 1930 to 1937 he resided at St. Stephen, New Brunswick.[3]

Eastport, Washington County, Maine

Numerous Irvins and Irvings are in the records for Eastport.[4] Some records are delayed registrations of births in New Brunswick and Ireland.

Among the earliest were JAMES IRVING of Londonderry, Ireland, his wife JANE STEVENSON, and their Irish-born children FRANK IRVING, WILLIAM IRVING, and JAMES IRVING, born in 1821, 1827, and 1833, respectively.

Another WILLIAM IRVING, a drayman of Eastport, was born in Ireland in 1833 and married ANN THOMPSON at Pennfield, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, in 1860. They had several children born in Eastport.

Yet another WILLIAM IRVING was born in New Brunswick in 1841 and married SARAH JANE HUNTLEY at Eastport in 1860. After fishing out of Eastport, he farmed at Robbinston, Maine.[1] They had several children.

Chapter 8. Owners of the Irvin Farm at Little Ridge

The Thomas Irvin farm land is a long rectangular parcel that fronts on the west margin of Little Ridge Road. Little Ridge Road runs from Milltown to Scotch Ridge along the top of Little Ridge. Little Ridge, or Little Ridgton, as it was sometimes called in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, is a ridge of land oriented in a north-south direction and lying between the St. Croix River and Maine on the west and Mohannes Stream on the east. Little Ridge is an area within St. James Parish rather than a village per se. St. James Parish has several such areas and a few villages, all of which are rural satellites of the town of St. Stephen. See figure 5.

When Thomas Irvin purchased his 75-acre Little Ridge property in 1836, it probably already had some farm buildings, because grantees of Crown lands were required to improve their properties or forfeit them. The lot, part of a large Crown grant to Nehemiah Marks in the late 18th century, was first individually owned by Richard Smy, Sr. of St. Andrews, who apparently sold it by unrecorded deed to Richard Smy, Jr., George McLachlan and Nathaniel Eccles.[1] Eccles was a St. Andrews ship builder who, interestingly, had been a co-applicant in 1826 with Thomas for crown lands in St. Patrick Parish. Smy, McLachlan and Eccles sold the Little Ridge property to James Boyd in 1833,[2] who in turn sold to Thomas in 1836.[3] Thomas died intestate sometime around 1842, and his widow and children held the property until 1855, when they sold it to Thomas's son Edward

[2] Charlotte County Deeds, M:341.

[3] Charlotte County Deeds, P:427. The Irvin farm was lot 10 in the Mark's grant, but was erroneously referred to as lot 9 in the quitclaim deed from Boyd to Irvin. In the previous deed, Smy, McLachlan and Eccles, in their deed to Boyd, apparently called it lot 9, but the Registrar of Deeds made a notation on the registry copy changing lot 9 to lot 10. When Boyd sold to Thomas, he apparently copied the description of the property from his personal copy (of the Smy et al to Boyd deed), rather than from the Registry copy. The deeds from the heirs of Thomas Irvin to Edward Irvin, and from Edward Irvin to Thomas II and Alexander refer to lot 10. The confusion in the lot numbers may have arisen from the fact the Smy Senior did own lot 9, and sold it to James Boyd in 1823 (Charlotte County Deeds, H:152). At that time it was customary for land transactions to be made close to home, and distant from the deed registry, which was then in St. Andrews. Boyd's deed to Thomas Irvin refers to a lot map "now or formerly in the possession of Mrs. Nancy Christie of St. Stephens," indicating that it is unlikely that any of the parties to the transaction actually looked at the map at the time the deed was executed.

Irvin.[1] Edward held it for a few years, and then sold it to his brothers Thomas (II) and Alexander as a split parcel.[2] Thomas and Alexander, unmarried men, had been living on the farm with their mother and unmarried sisters Eliza and Sarah all along. Thomas II died intestate in 1892, but it was not until 1909 that his half was deeded back to Alexander by a deed that named all the living children and adult grandchildren of Thomas (I).[3] Alexander, who outlived all his siblings, lived on the property longer than any other owner, from his birth in 1839 until his death in 1927. In his later years, Sarah Roy, an unmarried daughter of his sister Mary Ann, kept house for him, and it was to Sarah that he deeded the property in 1922.[4] Shortly before she died Sarah willed the farm to her unmarried sister Clara Roy in 1929.[5] Clara sold the property to one Joshua Ferguson in 1930, marking the first time in 94 years that the property was not held by an Irvin.[6] Ferguson and his wife lived there for almost 30 years. Ferguson's estate sold the farm in 1960 to John and Elsie Vaughan.[7] John Vaughan died in 1975 and his wife followed several years later. Her estate sold the land, by then overgrown, to one Douglas Hastey in 1990, described in the deed as a skidder operator.[8] Mr. Hastey is the current owner.

Chapter 9. Owners of the Irvin Farm at Barter Settlement

Except for the period from 1925 to 1931, the John Irvin farm has been in Irvin hands since 1855. The Barter Settlement, with its open fields and scattered houses, retains a distinctly rural character.

The land acquired by John Irvin in the northwest area of St. Stephen Parish was originally part of a Crown land grant to a group of men including John Pendlebury, a mariner from St. Andrews. Pendlebury sold the 100-acre lot 11 to Richard Barter in 1828, forming the nexus of the area to subsequently bear Barter's name.[1] Barter split lot 11, selling the northwest half to William and John Wright in 1853,[2] and the southwest half to John Irvin in 1855.[3] The two halves were to be reunited years later by John's son-in-law (see descendant number 2 in Chapter 1). Included with the 50-acre southwest half was a 1¾-acre house lot that had been carved out of the northeast corner of lot 10.[4]

John augmented his new farm with a non-contiguous 50-acre meadow purchased from James Roy,[5] his sister's father-in-law, and a small gore that the owner, John Hill, had carved from lot 7.[6] After farming for 16 years, John died intestate in 1872. His children and heirs executed the sale of all John's lands to John's son Frederick in 1875,[7] and Catherine and the children continued to reside on the farm. It seems that Frederick's title was flawed because widow Catherine was not a grantor and the deed was subject to the widow's right of dower. After Catherine died in 1878 the children remained on the farm. In 1885, 13 years after the death of John, they deeded the property to their brother-in-law David Embleton, husband of Laura.[8] This deed included only the southwest half of lot 11 and did not mention the Roy meadow or the two small parcels.

In 1893 Embleton acquired the other half of lot 11, effectively reconstituting the original lot.[9] David increased his acreage by separately acquiring a 200-acre meadow on the Mohannes Stream. The Embletons worked the Irvin farm for 40 years. David died a widower in 1924, and like his father-in-law left no will. Embleton's estate sold the entire farm to George Leeman in 1925,[1] who one week later sold both halves of lot 11, but not the meadow, to Robert Porter.[2] Porter's estate sold the property to Herbert Hewitt, husband of Harriet Sprague (see Chapter 1, descendant 42), grand niece to John Irvin and first cousin once removed to Laura (Irvin) Embleton, in September 1931.[3] That same month, Herbert and Harriet deeded the property to Harriet's son Charles Haney (see Chapter 1, descendant 93), then 31 years old.[4] Charles resided at the old farm for the remainder of his life. In 1976 he deeded the farm to his son Dale (see Chapter 1, descendant 178) and Dale's wife Carole, while retaining an equal ownership interest.[5] Charles died in 1982. Dale, great- great- grand-nephew of John Irvin, and his wife Carole Ann continue to reside at the blue-painted farmhouse on the west side of the Barter Settlement Road.

Until the Haneys stopped farming about 1957, they had horses and open fields. The barns were torn down around 1960 and the fields grew up, to be cleared later by Dale Haney. Although Charles Haney raised the roof on one side, and added porches, a bathroom and another cellar entrance, the kitchen has not been reworked, and original hand-hewn beams are still visible in the attic.[6]

Chapter 10. Ancestors of Catherine Gow of St. Andrews

Parents of Catherine Gow

WILLIAM GOW[1] was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, about 1795. He died in March 1884 and was buried at St. Andrews, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 12 March 1884 in the St. Andrews Rural Cemetery.[2]

He married MARTHA CRAIG at St. Andrews on 3 August 1818.[3] Martha was born about 1795, daughter of David Craig and Mary Steele.[4] She died in September 1882 and was buried at St. Andrews on 10 September 1882 in the Rural Cemetery.

William and Martha were admitted to the St. Stephen Baptist Church at the Bayside chapel on Oak Bay in February 1838 with a notation of baptism by letter and prior baptism on 29 September 1835 at Chamcook.[5] They lived in a one story frame house and farmed at Chamcook in the Parish of St. Andrews. In 1871 the household comprised William and [4] Rigbee. Rigbee states the following without citation: David Craig was born in Oct 1749, died at St Andrews in 1833, and was buried there in the Greenock church yard. Mary Steele was born in 1758. David was a member of the 74th Argyle Highlanders, a regiment posted by the British at Fort George (now Castine, Maine) to guard the Penobscot River, then considered by the British to be the boundary between the United States and British North America. Many in the regiment were distressed at the prospect of living as former loyalists in the United States. In 1784 they floated their families, and in some cases, their houses, to the eastern shore of Passamaquoddy Bay, to a site soon to be known as St Andrews. Later that year the Crown granted land to David and others from the disbanded regiment. Craig received land on the east side of the Digdeguash River in St. Patrick Parish. Over the succeeding years David farmed, lumbered, bought more property at Chamcook in St Andrews Parish, and sold off his Digdeguash property. He had eight children; Martha was the seventh.

Martha, and their children John (37), Samuel (27), James (26) and Emily (30). Emily and Samuel continued in the house through 1891.[1]

Children of William Gow and Martha Craig:

1 i. WILLIAM HENRY GOW[2] was born at Chamcook on 4 September 1818 and baptized on 11 October 1826 in the Greenock Presbyterian Church at St. Andrews.[3] He died at Chamcook on 5 February 1876 and was buried in the Rural Cemetery.[4]

He married SARAH STEWART at St. Andrews on 8 September 1845. Sarah was born at nearby Digdeguash, St. Patrick Parish, on 7 December 1824.[5] She died at Eureka, Humboldt County, California, on 21 December 1902.[6] In 1900 she lived in Gardner, Massachusetts, with her daughter Sarah.[7]

After working as a carpenter, Henry farmed at Chamcook. He acquired his lands in a series of purchases beginning in 1847 and continuing through 1864.[8] His one-story frame house at the corner of present-day Frye Road and Route 127 exists now as a small shingled Cape Cod style dwelling.

ii. MARY JANE GOW was born at Chamcook on 2 October 1820 and was baptized on 11 October 1826 at the Greenock Church.[9] She married DONALD CLARK at St. Andrews on 13 November 1836.[10]

iii. CATHERINE GOW was born on 7 October 1822. She married JOHN IRVIN (see descendant 2 in Chapter 1).

iv. MARTHA GOW was born at Chamcook on 11 September 1824 and baptized 11 October 1826 at the Greenock Church.[1] She married CAPT. JOHN COE at St. Andrews on 19 January 1849.[2] John was born at Robbinston, Washington County, Maine.[3]

v. ELIZABETH GOW[4] was born in New Brunswick about 1826. She died in 1906 and was buried at Robbinston in the Brewer Cemetery. She married ARCHIBALD JOHNSON. Archibald was born in 1820, died in 1904, and was buried in the Brewer Cemetery.

vi. SARAH ANN GOW[5] was born about 1828. She married SAMUEL CRAIG. Samuel was born in New Brunswick about 1821, son of David Craig and Sarah Bonney. He married secondly Rebecca Ridgeway. Samuel died in October 1877 and was buried at St. Andrews on 11 October 1877 in the Rural Cemetery. He was a farmer in St. Andrews Parish, and lived with Sarah in a log house next to his Aunt Martha and her husband William Gow.

vii. DAVID GILBERT GOW[6] was born at Chamcook on 31 January 1831. He died at Anoka, Anoka County, Minnesota,

He married MARY FRAZIER STEWART on 26 October 1854. Mary[3] was born in New Brunswick on 28 September 1834,[4] daughter of David Stewart and Agnes Nancy Lacelles, and was baptized on 12 October 1834. She died at Anoka on 22 April 1921 and was buried in the Forest Hill Cemetery.[5]

David was a hired man for Daniel Gillmore in St. George, New Brunswick, in 1851.[6] After marriage David and Mary settled in Baring, Maine. In 1857 David purchased from Richard Dudley a 1/3-acre lot on Town Farm Road in Baring for $300. Dudley took back a $250 mortgage.[7] In 1865 he purchased and settled 70 acres in Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on the west side of the road leading from St. George to Lower Trout Brook. While in St. George he worked as a laborer in his brother's shipyard and then in lumbering. Around 1880 he and Mary removed to Anoka[8] and farmed.[9] viii. JOHN GOW[10] was born at St. Andrews on 3 February 1834. He died at Calais, Washington County, Maine, on 10 September 1923 and was buried there at Red Beach.

In 1851 he was a laborer and lodged with Mr. McGuigan in St. George Parish, New Brunswick.[11] At the time of his death he was a farmer in St. Andrews. However in a deed for some Robbinston, Maine, property from John to his son William Gow executed in August 1922, he is listed as a resident of Robbinston. Mrs. Belle A. Stinson, his mother-in-law, and Mrs. Annie Gow, William's wife, were witnesses.[12]

Chapter 11. Ancestors of Clara Johnson of Second Falls

Parents of Clara Johnson

ROBERT JOHNSON[1] was born in Ireland about 1832. He died at Second Falls, St. George Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 17 June 1890,[2] and is presumed to have been buried there in the Baptist Cemetery.[3]

He married AGNES STEWART at Second Falls on 6 December 1855.[4] Agnes was born in St. George Parish on 9 April 1836,[5] daughter of David Stewart and Agnes Nancy Lacelles. She died at Beverly, Essex County, Massachusetts, on 10 January 1902.[6] Her remains were transported to New Brunswick and buried in the Baptist Cemetery.[7]

After she was widowed Agnes became the postmistress for St. George and continued to farm at Second Falls.[8] In 1893 the brothers and sisters of Agnes deeded to Agnes their interest in "the house lot" at Upper (Second) Falls.[9] All but her brother Edward and his wife, who were local, did so by affidavits notarized in Minnesota. In 1900 Agnes sold the house lot to

[3] His burial at Second Falls is presumed, based on his death having taken place at Second Falls. There is no stone for Robert Johnson. However, WJA observed two depressions in the ground surface adjacent to the marker for Agnes. According to Vernard J Irvine, this stone was erected in the mid-twentieth century by Bea Johnson, granddaughter of Robert and Agnes Johnson. The marker reads, "Agnes Stewart / wife of / Robert Johnson / died 1901 / age 63 years."

Gillmor Stewart for $100.[1] Agnes was not listed in the 1901 census for St. George Parish. She was residing in Ipswich, Massachusetts, in November 1901.[2]

Robert removed to St. George Parish from New Brunswick's Miramachi River Valley.[3] He was a farmer at Second Falls, and for many years after settling there was a lumber mill worker. In 1871 Robert and his family shared a two-family dwelling with Amelia and Eliza Gillmore.[4] In 1872 Robert purchased the northern half of the 260-acre lot 18 on the west side of the main road running north from the town of St. George, just north of the Second Falls village, for eighty dollars.[5] Lot 18 is rectangular, lies perpendicular to the road and is bisected by the Bonney River, which flows into the Magaguadavic River about two miles south of the lot. Robert died intestate. After his death his widow Agnes and his surviving children, David, Jessie and Nellie, all named as heirs, and all in Massachusetts at the time, sold lot 18 for $100 on 1 November 1901.[6]

Children of Robert Johnson and Agnes Stewart:

i. JESSIE LOUISA JOHNSON[7] was born in St. George Parish about 1858. She died in 1945 and was buried at Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts, in the Highland Cemetery.

She married JOSEPH THEODORE MORTON at Beverly, Massachusetts, on 1 May 1885. Joseph was born at Poland, Androscoggin County, Maine, about 1860, son of Elisha Morton and Melinda Crooker. He died in 1946 and was buried at Ipswich in the Highland Cemetery. Joseph was a shoemaker and later a looping room laborer at the hosiery mill.

Jessie removed to Massachusetts about 1882. At the time she married Joseph she was a factory operative and both were residing at Beverly. Later she was a homemaker. She and Joseph resided for many years at Ipswich. They lived first at 10 East Street and later at 42 East Street. They had two children, Marion and Forrest.

ii. GEORGE JOHNSON was born in New Brunswick about 1858. He died after 1871 and probably before 1881.[1]

iii. CLARA JOHNSON was born on 27 December 1861 or 1862. She married ROBERT IRVINE (see entry for descendant number 8 in Chapter 1).

iv. DAVID STEWART JOHNSON[2] was born in St. George Parish in August 1867. He died at Ipswich on 27 May 1951 and was buried there in the Highland Cemetery.[3]

He married AGATHA M. HALLIDAY at Ipswich on 21 March 1896.[4] Agatha was born in Canada[5] in January 1876, daughter of Burton Halliday and Mary Wade. She died in 1965 and was buried in the Highland Cemetery. She removed to Massachusetts about 1891 and became a looper in the Ipswich hosiery mill. After Aggie was widowed she remained in Ipswich, residing at 27 Washington Street.[6]

David removed to Massachusetts about 1891. He and Agatha resided at Ipswich where he worked at the hosiery mill.[7] At the mill he started as a catter and retired as an overseer in the finishing room. They had one child, Bea Johnson.

6. DAVID STEWART[3] was born in Ireland about 1805. He died in New Brunswick on 26 July 1876 and was buried at Second Falls, St. George Parish, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, in the Baptist Cemetery.[4]

He married (1) AGNES NANCY LACELLES[5] in Charlotte County on 10 January 1830.[6] Agnes was born in Ireland about 1805, daughter of Edward Lacelles and Mary (—). She died on 2 February 1857[7] and was buried in the Baptist Cemetery.[8] She emigrated to New Brunswick about 1825.

He married (2) MARY MANZER in say 1860, after the death of Agnes and before the 1861 census. Mary was born in Ireland about 1807 and died after 1885.[1] She brought to the Stewart household her sons William Manzer (born about 1844) and Samuel Manzer (born about 1835).

David emigrated to New Brunswick about 1825. He was a blacksmith and farmer at Second Falls. Around 1833 he received a land grant from the Crown for 200 acres on the Magaguadavic River in St. George Parish. Around 1853 he received another grant for 52 acres, designated lot G, northeast of the Bonney River in St. George Parish.[2]

David and Nancy Stewart were charter members of the Second Falls Baptist Church, which was organized in 1851 with 70 members.[3]

In 1871 David's household comprised David, Mary, and William Stewart, ages 66, 63 and 21, respectively, and a William Stewart, age 60, Irish, farmer. The latter William's relationship to David is unknown.

David died intestate. He had owned 300 acres on the west side of the Magaguadavic River, in Manners Sutton Parish, York County.[4] This parcel was sold to William Goudy of St. Andrews on 12 December 1876 for $1500. Named as grantors were

Stewart of Anoka, minister of the Gospel, and Lillie his wife; and Edward Stewart of Second Falls, farmer, and Elizabeth his wife.[2]

Children of David Stewart and Agnes Nancy Lacelles:

i. JANE STEWART[3] was born on 24 March 1831.[4] She died at Brainerd, Crow Wing County, Minnesota, on 5 October 1913.[5]

She married WILLIAM SMART BROCKWAY in New Brunswick on 10 May 1848. He was born in New Brunswick on 14 May 1826, son of Reuben Brockway and Margaret Lavina Dowdell. He died at Brainerd on 7 April 1896.[6]

He and Jane removed to Minnesota. According to his son William Elmer, William S. Brockway was a lumberman in Canada, and drove a stage between Anoka and Minneapolis before moving to Brainerd, Minnesota in 1880. He and Jane lived in Brainerd at least through 1893, at which time Jane appeared as a grantor in a deed to her sister Agnes. In Brainerd William was a grocer and ran a boarding house known as the East Hotel. The hotel was a 40-room structure favored by railroad men. Jane and William had five sons and four daughters.

ii. MARGARET STEWART[1] was born in New Brunswick on 28 March 1833.[2] She died at Puyallup, Pierce County, Washington, on 2 June 1918. She was buried there on 4 June in the Sumner Cemetery.

She married SAMUEL MANZER in 1853. Samuel was Margaret's step-brother. Samuel was born in New Brunswick about 1835, son of Mary Manzer.

Margaret was widowed at a young age, and then lived with one or another of her sisters. In 1893 she resided in Anoka County, Minnesota.[3] By 1910 she was residing at Seattle, Washington. At the time of her death in 1918 she was residing with her sister Elizabeth Gillmore at Puyallup. Margaret had no children.

iii. MARY FRAZIER STEWART[4] was born in New Brunswick on 28 September 1834.[5] She died at Anoka, Anoka County, Minnesota, on 22 April 1921.[6] She was buried there in the Forest Hill Cemetery.[7]

She married DAVID GILBERT GOW on 26 October 1854.[8] See Chapter 10, Ancestors of Catherine Gow, for biographical details. Mary and David had three sons and six daughters.

iv. AGNES STEWART, mother of Clara Johnson, was born on 9 April 1836. She married ROBERT JOHNSON.

v. JOHN STEWART[9] was born in Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 15 February 1838.[10] He died on 26 April 1908.

He married MARY A. GOSS on 28 November 1860.[1] She was born in 1842.

John removed to Minnesota about 1865, worked as a blacksmith until 1870, took up farming, and by 1876 had settled in Champlin Township, Hennepin County, Minnesota.[2] John and Mary had three sons and three daughters.

vi. BABY DAVID STEWART[3] was born on 29 September 1839, and died on 13 November 1840.

vii. DAVID STEWART[4] was born at Second Falls on 16 March 1841.[5] He died at Eugene, Lane County, Oregon, on 26 October 1923. He was buried at Oak Grove Township, Anoka County, Minnesota, in the West Oak Grove Cemetery.

He married PHEBE ELIZA SEELYE at St. Francis, Anoka County, Minnesota, on 27 August 1865. Eliza was born in New Brunswick, on 30 July 1841, daughter of Moses S. Seelye and Eunice Linton.[6] She died at Eugene, Oregon, on 30 June 1911,[7] and was buried in Minnesota in the West Oak Grove Cemetery. She removed to Oak Grove, Minnesota with her parents in 1855.

The 1861 census listed David twice, once with his parents, and once with the household of John B. and Sarah Creasy in St. Patrick Parish, where he was listed as a blacksmith, and as nephew to the heads of household.[8] David removed to St. Francis, Minnesota in 1864, took up residence, and worked as a blacksmith.[9] In October 1910 he traveled to Oregon and Washington State to visit his children. He resided with them for the next 12 years.

David and Phebe had five sons and one daughter. Through their son John is descended a great grandson, David Bruce viii. EDWARD LASELLE STEWART[1] was born in New Brunswick 28 February 1843.[2] He died in St. George Parish on 8 March 1923,[3] and was buried in the St. George Rural Cemetery.

Stewart of Kansas. Through their son Lasells is descended a granddaughter, Dorothy (Stewart) (Chapman) Stewart of Oregon. Both have undertaken genealogical research of the Stewart family.

He married ELIZABETH GILLMORE at Second Falls on 1866, after 9 July.[4] Elizabeth was born in St. George Parish on 15 September 1843, daughter of Alfred Gillmore and Elizabeth Oliver. She died at Second Falls on 31 March 1917, and was buried there in the Baptist Cemetery.

Edward was a blacksmith and storekeeper at Second Falls.[5] Edward and Elizabeth first removed to Isanti, Isanti County, Minnesota, probably before 1870, and then in 1872 to Anoka, Minnesota. By 1876 they had moved back to New Brunswick, where Edward assumed his father's blacksmith business.[6] In an 1893 deed, Edward was described as a farmer.[7] Edward and Elizabeth had two sons and three daughters. From their daughter Ella is descended a granddaughter, Anita (Spinney) Grearson, who has undertaken extensive research of the Stewart family. Among Edward's descendants, the Stewart name has daughtered out.

ix. SARAH STEWART[8] was born in New Brunswick on 14 June 1845.[9] She died at Baring, Washington County, Maine, on 4 June 1865, and was buried at Second Falls in the Baptist Cemetery.

She married MARCUS CRAFTS at Calais, Washington County, Maine, after 24 November 1863.[10] Marcus was born in Maine about 1836, son of Samuel and Ann Crafts.[1]

x. ELIZABETH STEWART[3] was born in New Brunswick on 3 January 1848.[4] She died at Puyallup, Washington, on 25 January 1937.[5] She was buried there on 27 January in the Sumner Cemetery.

She married EDWARD GILLMORE at Anoka, Minnesota, on 29 June 1867. Edward[6] was born in New Brunswick on 1 April 1844, son of Adoniram Gillmore and Ellen Boyle. He died at Puyallup on 25 May 1922,[7] and was buried in the Sumner Cemetery. Edward was a lumberman at Anoka.[8]

After marrying and before 1871, they returned to New Brunswick, where their children were born. About 1886 they returned to Anoka, where they resided until moving to Puyallup in 1911. Elizabeth and Edward had one son and two daughters.

xi. WILLIAM JAMES STEWART was born at Second Falls on 22 April 1850.[9] He died at Woburn, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, on 4 June 1928.[10] He was buried at Saint John, Saint John County, New Brunswick, on 7 June in the Greenwood Cemetery.

He married LILLIE SMITH HANSON at Boston, Suffolk County, Massachusetts, on 18 July 1878.[11] Lillie[12] was born at Saint John on 5 February 1857, daughter of Vernon Hanson and Helen Smith. She died at Woburn on 12 March 1939. She

William graduated from Wolfeboro College with a Divinity degree.[1] The St. Croix Courier reported in 1876, "Rev. W. J. Stewart has been engaged as the pastor of the South Musquash Baptist Church where he has been laboring with great success."[2] William was appointed to the pastorate of the Baptist churches at Parrsboro and Advocate, Nova Scotia, on 1 May 1881.[3] A few months later, the St. Croix Courier, citing the Post,[4] announced that,

> The Rev. Mr. Stewart, Baptist Minister, now residing at Parrsboro, and formerly of St. George, N.B., who has been visiting the church at Advocate, monthly, is about to retire from the field. This is much regretted by all, as the rev. gentleman has, by his genial manner and eloquent preaching, made himself very popular.

In 1893 he and Lillie were living in Anoka County, Minnesota, where he was a minister.[5] At some point, he removed to Woburn, Massachusetts, where he continued as a Baptist clergyman.[6] William and Lillie had one son, Vernon Champney Stewart, M.D., and a daughter Lillian.

Child of David and Margaret Stewart:

i. DAVID STEWART, grandfather of Clara Johnson, was born about 1805. He married AGNES NANCY LACELLES.

10. EDWARD LACELLES[1] was born in Ireland about 1786. He died on 12 March 1868, and was buried at Calais, Washington County, Maine, in the Calais Cemetery.[2]

He married MARY (__). Mary was born in Ireland about 1776, died on 10 October 1858, and was buried in the Calais Cemetery.[3] She emigrated to Canada about 1823.

Edward emigrated to New Brunswick about 1822 or 1823. In 1826, Edward petitioned the Lieutenant Governor for lot 1, Reserve 2, near North Lake, St. Patrick Parish, and containing about 140 acres. The petition stated that Edward was married, had five children, and had resided in the province four years. Thomas Irvin, Alexander McCann and Nathaniel Eccles simultaneously applied for adjacent lots. All were granted. Edward built a log house on his property at St. Patrick's Lake in 1831.[4] The log house was next door to daughter Sarah Creasy. The 1851 census described Edward and Mary as infirm. After the death of his wife Mary, he resided with his son Samuel in Calais.[5] Buried with him are his wife Mary, Mrs. J. Rose, Sam Lacells, Celia Lacells, H. Irving, Minnie M. Irving and J. F. Atkinson.

Children of Edward and Mary Lacelles:

i. AGNES NANCY LACELLES, grandmother of Clara Johnson, was born about 1805. She married DAVID STEWART.

ii. MARY JANE LACELLES[6] was born in Ireland about 1809. She married ALEXANDER MCCANN at St. Andrews, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, on 30 April 1823.[7]

Alexander was born in Ireland about 1797.[1] He emigrated to New Brunswick about 1819. In 1826 he petitioned the Lieutenant Governor to receive and was granted lot 2, in reserve 2, St. Patrick Parish, comprising 100 acres. The petition stated that he was married and had two children.[2] Alexander and Mary Jane had three sons, a daughter, and a fifth child.[3]

iii. SARAH LACELLES[4] was born in Ireland about 1813.

She married JOHN B. CREASY at St. Andrews on 8 October 1835.[5] John was born in England about 1803. He died between 1861 and 1871. He was a farmer in St. Patrick Parish.[6]

In 1861 Sarah's nephew David Stewart was enumerated in the household as a blacksmith. Sarah and John lived in a frame house next door to the log house occupied by her parents.[7]

Nova Scotia. She died on 19 March 1895 and was buried in the Calais Cemetery.[2] In her will, Celia left her house and its contents to Celia Ann Bellis, who was named as an adopted daughter.[3]

In 1840 Samuel purchased property in St. Patrick Parish from his father.[4] In 1859 Samuel purchased half of lot no. 1 in St. Patrick Parish from his father, amounting to some 70 acres.[5] Cecelia, as the records sometimes have his wife, granted Samuel land in St. James Parish in 1874.[6] He resided in St. Stephen in 1851[7] and was in Calais by 1860, where he was a mill worker and later a saw filer. Samuel and Celia had no children. The Lacelles and Irvins shared a cemetery lot and grave marker.

[3] Celia Lacelles, will, as described by WJA, letter to VIA, 9 Dec 1999. We speculate that Celia Ann was the daughter of Edward and Celia's neighbor, friend, and tenant, Hugh Irvin, and that the term "adopted daughter" was meant to convey sentiment rather than civil status.

All persons and places found in the text and footnotes are listed here. Italicized page numbers refer to entries in footnotes. Persons are listed by surname and then by first name. Married women who are descendants or spouses of descendants are listed by maiden name and cross-referenced by married name. Some individuals commonly known by their middle names are cross-referenced by middle name. Names of places are organized primarily under the name of the Canadian province, American state, or foreign country; secondarily under the county; then under township and village. Special entries marking mentions of the cotton mill at Milltown, New Brunswick, the paper mill at Woodland, Maine, and most cemeteries are indexed as places. Bodies of water are separately indexed under "water bodies and courses." Similarly, wartime military service and historical references to wars are indexed under "wars."
